aboard by the ladder thrown over the side."

Miss Bentley was suffering from in furles received by being struck in the chest by the boat while she was in the water, and later when she was being passed aboard the Belfast from the Chisholm she fell and hurt her side. Her brother, Leverett D. G. Bentley of the Globe, called for her at India Wharf and took her home in an automobile.

Mrs. Bartlett, who was greatly excited, said on the arrival of the Edication of the scribe what happened. I took my money and Jewels, my watch, a diamond rings and tied them around my neck, but when I went under the water when I fell out of the lifeboat I suppose they went over my head or dropped in some way. In any case I lost them, and I do not expect to be able to recover them."

Mrs. Bartlett's boy, Ralph W. Jr., said that his experience in the water was likewise anything but pleasant. The little girl was wrapped up in a blanket, and all the members of the family had lost their belongings.

"There were about 30 people in our boat," said Mrs. Bartlett, "when the Always actively interested in the welfare of the communities in which he lived, he identified himself with the church of his faith upon his arrival and lent his aid to the best interests of the village and became active in the social life of the community. He took a keen interest in the political affairs, not only of the smaller circle of town and city life, but in the wider range of state and national politics. He had a wide acquaintance with men active in political life and was trusted by many who sought public office, though he would never accept such for himself. He was honored by appointment as a representative of the State on various boards and for many years prior to his death served as such on the board of the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital. He was interested in building up the business interest of his village and ward in the city of Newton, was an incorporator of the Newton Centre Trust Co. and the Newton Centre Savings Bank. He served the Trust Co. as clerk from its organization and as director, and the Savings Bank as an adviser and member of its investment committee.

Mr. Adolphus J. Blancharg, treasurer of the Newton Savings Bank, died at the Newton Hospital at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning after an illness of about five weeks with typhold fever. Mr. Blanchard was born at Billerica, Mass., in 1850, the son of the late Joseph Blanchard.

In 1892 Mr. Blanchard became treasurer of the Newton Savings Bank, the oldest savings bank in the city. Previous to accepting the position he was in the office of the late Hon. J. F. C. Hyde, who at that time was president of the bank. In addition to his being treasurer of the bank, Mr. Blanchard also served as clerk of its Investment Committee. He was of a quiet, retiring disposition; with his interest centered in his work, his family and the church with which he was connected, namely the Unitarian Church of Newton Centre. His home for several years has been at "The Summer" on Summer street, Newton Centre. Mr. Blanchard was twice married and is survived by a widow. Mrs. Fannie Morehead Blanchard, and a son, Arthur S. Blanchard, and chemist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The funeral will take place at the Newton Centre Unitarian Church this afternoon at two o'clock.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THOSE DELEGATES

Roosevelt Contests Instigated to Deceive the Public.

ALL BUT 74 WERE ABANDONED

An Examination of the Facts Show That the Tribunals Which Decided These Contests in Favor of Mr. Taft Were Right In Every Instance—The Remaining 164 Contests Were Frivolous, and Their Prompt Abandonment cts Upon the Genuineness and Validity of the Remainder.

Washington. July 20.—Here are the facts in relation to the contested seats in the Republican national convention. It is a summary of a detailed statement going carefully into all of the cases, a statement so thorough that it takes up 150 pages of printed matter. This statement is signed by Mr. Victor Rosewater, chairman of the former depublican national committee; by Mr. J. H. Devine of Colorado, chairman of the committee on credentials of the Republican national convention, and by Mr. Charles D. Hilles, chairman of the present Republican national committee. The total number of delegates summoned to the convention under its call was 1,078, with 540 necessary to a choice. Mr. Taft had 561 votes on the first and only ballot and was declared first and only ballot and was declared the nominee. There were instituted against 238 of the delegates regularly elected for Taft contests on behalf of Roosevelt. These contests were avow-edly instignted not for the purpose of really securing seats in the convention, not for the purpose of adducing evi-dence which would lend any respectable court to entertain the contests, but for the purpose of deceiving the public into the belief that Mr. Roosevelt had more votes than he really had, as the conventions and primaries were in progress for the selection of delegates. This is not only a necessary inference from the character of the contests, but it was boldly avowed by the chief edi tor of the newspapers owned by Mr. Munsey, who has been Mr. Roosevelt's chief financial and newspaper supporter. The 238 contests were reduced by abandonment to seventy-four.

The very fact of these 164 frivolous contests itself reflects upon the genuineness and validity of the remainder The seventy-four delegates include six at large from Arizona, four at large from Kentucky, four at large from In-diana, six at large from Michigan, eight at large from Texas and eight at large from Washington, and also two district delegates each from the Ninth Alabama, the Fifth Arkansas, the Thirteenth Indiana, the Seventh, Eighth and Eleventh Kentucky, the Third Oklahoma, the Second Tennes-see and from each of nine districts, the First, Second, Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Fourteenth of Texas

CONTESTED DELEGATES AT LARGE.

Arizona.
In the Arizona convention there were ninety-three votes. All the delegates— six in number—were to be selected at large. The counties were entitled to se-lect their delegates through their county committee or by primary. In one county, Maricopa, a majority of the committee decided to select its dele-gates and a minority to have a pri-mary. In other counties there were some contests, and the strae committee, following the usage of the national committee, gave a hearing to all contestants in order to make up the tem porary roll. There was a clear majority of the Taft delegates among the uncontested delegates. The committee made up the temporary roll and then there was a bolt, sixty-four remaining in the hall and twenty-five withdraw ing therefrom. The case of the Taft majority was so clear that it is difficult to understand why a contest was made.

Indiana. In Indiana the four Taft delegates at large were elected in a state conven-tion to which Marion county, in which Indianapolis is situate, was entitled to 128 votes. A primary was held in In-dianapolts, at which Taft polled 6,000 and Roosevelt 1,400 votes. This gave and Roosevelt 1,400 votes. This gave Taft 106 delegates in the state convenom Marion county, and if the were properly seated the control of the convention by a large majority conceded to Taft. Attempt was r to impeach the returns from Marion county by charges of fraud and repeat lug. These charges were of a general tharacter, without specification except as to one ward out of fifteen wards, and then the impeaching witness ad mitted he could not claim fraud enough mitted be could not claim fraud enough to change the essult in that ward. The national committee, upon which there were fifteen auti-Taft men, rejected the Roosevelt contestants and gave the Taft delegates their dests by a unanimous vote. Senator Borah and Mr. Frank B. Kellogg, both Roosevelt men, and a complete in a variety in the rote. boade speeches in explaining the votes in which they said that the case turned wholly on the Marion county primary, and as there was no evidence to im-peach the result certified, the title of the Taft delegates was clear This is the convention whose proceedings called forth such loud charges of theft and fraud from Mr. Roosevelt.

Kentucky.
In Kentucky a contest was filed against only three of the four delegates testants admitted they were not elect-ed by the convention which sent the Taft delegates or by any other. They only contended that if the Roosevelt forces had had a majority they would have been elected. There were 2,356 delegates summoned to the convention by its call. There were 440 of these by its call. There were 440 of these whose seats were contested. If all of these had been conceded to Roosevelt it would have made the Roosevelt vote 297 votes less than a majority. The appeal to the committee on credentials from the decision of the national committee was abandoned, as it ought to hears been

In Michigan the state convention had in it about 1,200 delegates. There were only two countles in dispute or contest. One was Wayne county, in which Detroit is situated, and the other which Detroit is situated, and the other was Calhoun county. The evidence left no doubt that the Taft men car ried by a very large majority Wayne county, but it was immaterial whether this was true or not, because, leaving out both Wayne county and Calboun county, the only counties in contest, the Taft delegates outnumbered by several hundred the Roosevelt dele-gates, and they had a clear majority cut of the total number of votes that should have been in the convention. The contest was so weak as to hardly merit recital.

Texas

In Texas there were 249 countles, of which four have no county govern ment. The 245 counties under the call of the convention were allowed to have something over 1,000 delegates, repre-senting them, who were given author-ity to cast 248 votes. Of the 245 countles there were ninety-nine countles in which the total Republican vote was but 2,000, in fourteen of which there were no Republican voters, in twenty seven of which there were less than ten each and in none of which was there any Republican organization and in none of which had a primary or convention been held. It was shown that Colonel Cecil Lyon, to whom had been assigned as referee the disposition of the patronage of the national Republican administration for ten years in the state, had been in the habit of con trolling the Republican state conven-tion by securing from two federal of ficeholders in each of these ninety-nine decholders in each of these ninety-nine counties if certificate granting a proxy to Colonel Lyon or a friend of his to represent the county as if regularly conferred by a Republican county organization. The national committee ganization. The national committee and the committee on credentials and the convention after the fullest investi the convention after the fullest livesti gation decided that these ninety-nine counties in which the Republican vote was so small and in which there was no Republican party, no convention, no primary, no organization, was not the proper source for a proxy to give a vote equal to that to be cast by the other 146 counties in which there was other 146 counties in which there was a Republican organization and in which primaries or conventions were theid. The two committees therefore held such aluety-nine proxies to be illegal and not the busis of proper representation. The two tribunals who heard the case dealers.

resentation. The two tribunals who beard the case decided that they should deduct the ninety-nine votes from the total of 245 and give the representation to those who controlled the majority of the remainder. The remainder was 152 votes, and out of that the Taft men had carried eighty-dine counties, having ninety votes. This gave to the Taft men a clear majority in the state convention and with it eight delegates at large

WASHINGTON. The contest in Washington turned on the question whether the Taft delegates appointed by the county committee in King county, in which Sentile is situate, were duly elected to the convention or whether a primary, which was subsequently held and at which Roosevelt delegates were elected, was properly called, so that its result was legal. Under the law the county committee had the power to decide whether it would select the delegates directly or should call a primary in some countes of the state one the question whether the Taft delesome counties of the state one course was pursued and in other coun-ties the other. In King county the committee consisted of 250 men, the majority of whom were for Taft, and that majority, acting through its execthat majority, acting through its exec-utive committee, selected the Taft dele-gates to the state convention. Mean time the city council of Seattle had re-districted the city. It before had 250 precincts. Now substantially the same mitteemen, and with these voting in the bettus estopped to claim that part the committee it is claimed that a primary was ordered. There was so much confusion in the meeting that this is INDIANA. However, the fact is that doubtful. However, the fact is that the Taft men protested against any getion by a committee so constituted on the ground that the chairman had no authority to appoint the 131 new committeenen. They refused to take part in the primary, and so did the La Follette men. The newspapers reported the number of votes in the primary to be something over 8,000. The Roose velt committee showed by atfidavit the doubtful. part in the primary, and so do the La half a vote more than the Roosevelt Follette usen. The newspapers reported the number of votes in the primary to be something over 8,000. The Roosevelt committee showed by attidavit the number to be 6,000 out of a usual total the question as to electing the Taff at large. The fourth Taft delegate's attempting to add 131 precinct men to sent was uncontested. The three conintempting to add 131 preclust men to the old committee was, of course, beyond his power. The resolution authorizing him to fill reancies, of course, applied only to those places which became vacant after they had been filled and clearly did not apply to 131 new preclusts. It could not in the nature of things apply to a change from the old sweam to a complete new from the old system to a complete new system of preclucts created by the city council, because if they were to be filled the entire number of 331 new precincts different from the old must be filled. One system could not be made into the other by a mere addi-tional appointment of 131 committee-men. No lawyer will say that such action by the committee thus constituted was legal. Therefore the action which the lawful committee of 250 took in electing Taft delegates who made a majority in the state convention was the only one which could be recognized

CONTESTED DISTRICT DELE-GATES. ALABAMA.

Ninth District,
The Ninth Alabama contest turned on the question whether the chairman of a district committee had power to fill vacancies, whether a committee-man who had sent his resignation to take effect only in case he was not present, being present, should be prevented from acting as committeeman and, third, on the identity of another committeeman. The written resolu-tion under which the right of the chairman to appoint to vacancies was claimed showed on its face that the specific authority was written in i pencil between the lines. A number of affidavits were filed by committeemen who were present when the resolution was passed to show that the resolu-tion contained no such authority. This gave rise to a question of fact upon which a very large majority of both the national committee and the com-mittee on credentials held that the lead pencil insertion was a forgery, that the chairman did not have the authority therefore to appoint to the vacancies, and therefore the action of his committee was not valid. This made it necessary to reject the contest The committee decided the two ants. other issues of fact before them in favor of the Taft contention, although the first decision was conclusive.

ARKANSAS.

Fifth District.

In the Fifth Arkansas the question was one of the identity of one faction or the other as the Republican party. This convention followed the example of the convention of 1908 in holding that what was known as the Redding. that what was known as the Redding faction was not the Republican party that it was a defunct organization and had only acquired life at the end of each four years for the purpose of using it in the national convention.

Fourth District.

The Fourth California presented this question: Under the state law the delegation, two from each district, was elected on a general ticket, in a group of twenty-six Each delegate might either express his presidential prefereither express his presidential preference or agree to vote for the presidential candidate receiving the highest number in the state. In the Fourth district the two candidates from that district on the Taft ticket expressed a preference for Taft, but did not agree to vote for the candidates having the highest state vote. These Taft delegates in the Fourth district received a majority of 200 more than the Roosevelt delegates in that dis-trict. The national call forbade any law or the acceptance of any law which prevented the election of dele gates by districts. In other words, the call of the national convention was at variance with the state law. The state law sought to enforce the state unit rule and required the whole twenty six delegates to be voted for all over the state, assigning two to each dis-trict on the ticket to abide the state wide election, while the Republican national convention has insisted upor the unit of the district since 1880. That has been the party law This conven-tion recognized the party law and held it to be more binding than that of the state law and allowed the two dele precincts. Now substantially the same state law and allowed the two deleteritory was divided up into 381 pre clusts. The chairman of the county committee was a Roosevelt man. He had been given authority by general resolution to fill vacancies occurring in this was clearly lawful, for a state has the committee. A general meeting of no power to limit or control the basis the committee. A general meeting of the control the basis the committee had been held after the city council had directed the redistricting of the city, in which it was resolved, the chairman not dissenting, the chairman not dissenting from approved all the twenty-six delegates as representing him is said to be solved, the chairman not dissenting, gram approved all the twenty-six dele-tion that representing the solution of the so-lected to fill the 331 new precincts up-til an election was held in September, election of two of those delegates in 1912. Thereafter and in spite of this conclusion the chairman assumed the right by his appointment to add to the existing committee 131 precinct com-vote carried. The Roosevelt men thus KENTUCKY.

Seventh District.
In the Seventh Kentucky district the total vote of the convention was 145.
There were contests from four counthes, involving almety-five votes. According to the rules of the party in Kentucky, where two seats of credentials are presented those delegates whose credentials are approved by the county chairman are entitled to tchpate in the temporary organization.
On the temporary roll the Taft chairman was elected by ninety-eight votes and forty-seven votes were east for the Roosevelt candidate. The committee on credentials was then appointed, consisting of one member named by each county delegation. The majority report of the committee was adopted unanimously by the convention, no delpananinously by the convention, no des-egation whose sents were contested being permitted to vote on its own case. As soon as the majority report of the credentials committee had been adopted, the Rossevelt adherents bott-ed. There was not the slightest reason for sustaining the contest for Rossevelt deterates.

Eighth District.

The Eighth Kentucky district was composed of ten countles having 163 votes, of which eighty-two were necesvotes, or which eighty-two were necessary to a choice. There was no contest in five of the counties, and although the Rooseveit men claimed that there was one in Spencer county no contest was presented against the senting of the regularly elected Taft delegates from that county. This gave the Taft delegates eighty-four votes, or two more than were necessary for a choice. In other words, assuming that the Roosevelt men were entitled to all the delegates from the counties in which they filed contests in the dis-trict convention there remained a clear majority of uncontested delegates who voted for the Taft delegates to Chi-

OKLAHOMA.

Third District.
In the Third Oklahoma district the question of the validity of the sents of the delegates turned on the constitu tion of the congressional committee which was made up of twelve Taft men and seven Roosevelt men. The chairman, Cochran, was a Roosevelt man and attempted to prevent the maman and attempted to prevent the ma-jority of the committee from taking action. The chairman was removed and another substituted, and thereupon the convention was duly called to order on the temporary roll prepared by the congressional committee, which was, made the permanent roll, and the two made the permanent roll, and the two Taft delegates to Chicago were duly selected. Every county in the district had its representation and vote in the regular convention, and no person properly accredited as a delegate was excluded or debarred from participat in: in its proceedings. Cochran and it. followers bolted after his deposi-tion. Assuming that all the committee who went out with him had the right to act on the committee, it left the committee standing twelve for Taft and seven for Roosevelt, so it was sim-ply a question whether a majority of the committee had the right to control its action or a minority. The boiting convention which Cochran held was not attended by a majority of the duly elected delegates to the convention. It did not have the credentials from the various counties, and its membership was largely made up of bystanders who had not been duly accredited by any county in the district. Its action was entirely without authority.

TENNESSEE.

Second District. Second Tennessee district

there were fifty-nine delegates uncon-tested out of a possible total of 108 in the convention. There were forty-nine the convention. There were forty-nine contested. The Roosevelt contestants in the forty-nine refused to abide the decision of the committee on creden tals and withdrew, leaving fifty-line uncontested delegates. These fifty-nine delegates, part of whom were Roosevelt men, remained in the convention, appointed the proper commit-tees, settled contests and proceeded to select Taft delegates. There can be no question about the validity therefore of their title

TEXAS. First District

The only remaining districts are the nine districts from Texas. Of these the First district was composed of eleven counties, each county having one vote except Cass county, which had two The executive committee, composed of one representative from each county, made up the temporary roll, and in the contests filed from two counties seated both delegates with one-half vote each. The convention elected the two Tuft delegates, giving them ten and one-quarter votes. Each county was represented in this vote. A minority represented in this vote. A innorty representing one and three-quarters votes boited the regular convention and held a runp meeting. The national committee by unanimous cots decided the contest in favor of the Second District.

In the Second Texas district there were fourteen counties. Two counties were found not to have held conventions and one county to have no dele gate present. The convention was then constituted by the delegations that held regular credentials. The report of the committee on credentials was accepted upon roll call, and then the representatives of five counties withdrew from the hall. The repre-sentatives of four of these counties held a rump convention. The regular convention remained in session several bours, appointed the usual committees, which retired and made their reports, which were accepted, and elected two Republican vote of 75,000. The action delegates, and after continuous object the chairman of the committee in the lasting three hours declared the tion and certified their election in due form to the national committee, which without division asked for, held them properly elected.

The Fourth Texas district consists of five counties, each having one vote of five counties, each having one vote in the district convention under the fall. One county, Rains, chose an uncontested delegation, and that one was for Taft. The other four counties sent contesting delegations. The contest ing delegations appeared before the congressional executive committee to present their claims, but the committee arbitrarily refused to bear any-body. Having exhausted every effort to secure a hearing, the four contest-ing delegations, together with the only uncontested delegation of the convention, withdrew to another place and held a convention and elected Taft delegates to the Chicago convention. The congressional convention which elected the Taft delegates was composed of more than a majority, and, indeed, of practically all the regularly elected delegates. The national com-mittee held the title of the Taft delegates to their seats valid by viva voce vote without calling for a division Fifth District.

The Fifth district of Texas is com posed of Dallas, Ellis, Hill, Bosque and Rockwall counties. Dallas county cast more Republican votes than all the other counties of the district put together. The call for the congres-sional convention allowed each county to send not to exceed four delegates, but made no reference to the basis of representation of the respective coun-ties composing the district. There was a contest from Dallas county, but the Taft delegates were seated. Taft delegates were sented on the temporary roll from two counties, and Roosevelt delegates from the three counties, and the representation in the convention was fixed at one vote for each county without regard to the number of dele gates in the convention or the ber of Republican votes cast in county. A minority report of the dis trict committee was presented, protest ing against the ratio of representa-tion adopted. The chairman of the convention objected to the presenta-tion of this minority report. Failing in this he abandoned the platform and

The convention thereupon elected a new chairman and a new secretary, appointed a committee on credentials, which recommended the seating of the Taft delegates from Hill county and the adoption of the minority report of the district committee as to the basis of the representation in the convention. Both these recommendations wer adopted, and Taft delegates to the na Both tional convention were thereupon elected by a vote of eight to three. The Roosevelt men thereafter retired to the south end of the hall, where they or-ganized a meeting at which it was claimed the Roosevelt delegates to the national convention were elected. Republican vote for the district for 1008 was as follows: Dallas county, 2,068; Ellis, 504; Hill, 414; Bosque, 266; Rockwall, 38. Both the national com mittee and the committee on creden tials sustained the Taft delegates

Seventh District.

Seventh District.
The Seventh congressional district of Texas is composed of the following counties: Anderson, Chambers, Galveston, Houston, Liberty, Polk, San Jacinto and Trinity. Polk, San Jacinto and Trinity were without proper party organization. In Texas county chair-men must be elected by the voters in each party. No such election was held in any of these three counties in two of them Colonel Lyon assumed to ap-point chairmen, which he had no right to do. Lyon himself had classed these three counties as unorganized and without party organization.

The convention met in Galveston.

The executive committee met prior to the meeting of the convention to make up the temporary roll of delegates. The executive committee had before it the question of having the three unorgan-ized counties represented in the convention. The executive committee re fused to recognize them. When this action was taken by the executive com-mittee a delegate from Houston county and the alleged representatives from the three unorganized counties with drew from the meeting and proceeded to organize another convention, and upon this is based the contest, which the three unorganized counties withdrew from the meeting and proceeded to organize another convention, and upon this is based the contest, which was rejected by both committees, the national committee and the credentials committee.

Eighth District.

In the Eighth Congressional convention a split occurred over the majority and minority reports of the executive committee as to the temporary roll. The Roosevelt followers controlled the executive committee as to the temporary roll. The Roosevelt followers controlled the executive committee, but did not have a majority in the convention, which adopted the minority report and gave Taff five and one-half votes. This resulted in the election of the Taff delegates, who were seated by both the national committee and the credentials committee.

Ninth District.

In the Ninth district the district committee was called by Mr. Speaker, a member of the committee end to convent the committee exast the head of the Classical Department of the University Press, coming from the head of the Classical Department of the University Press, coming from the canada to that firm through the late John Wilson. For over thirty years the head of the Classical Department of the University Press, coming from the colon that firm through the late John Wilson. For over thirty years the head of the Classical Department of the University Press, coming from the ground hinguist. He was at the head of the Classical Department of the University Press, coming from the ground hinguist. He was at the head of the Classical Department of the University Press, coming from the proof reading to that firm through the late John Wilson. For over thirty years the head of the University Press, coming from the University Press, but that if he did not have a majority satisfactory and satisfactory and satisfactory and satisfactory and satisfactory and s changed his mind and called a of the committee for April ing of the committee for April 17. This committee called a congressional convention to be held on May 18. But there was no publication of the call, which had to be thirty days before the convention, until April 21. The Taft convention seems therefore to have been duly and regularly convened, while the Roosevelt convention was not. The Taft delegates were seated.

Tenth District.
In the Tenth district the decision turned largely upon the bad faith with which two members of the district committee voted in the senting of dele-gates and upon the bad faith with which one of them used the proxy intrusted to him. The Taft delegates in this case boiled and left the hall and immediately in the same building organized another convention which con sisted of delegates from six counties. Proceedings were regularly held; a permanent organization effected, the report of the committee on resolutions adopted and delegates pleiged to Taft were elected. The undisputed evidence indicated that a flagrant attempt had been made to deprive Taft of this district, to which he was justly entitled. The national committee sustained the title of the Taft delegates and alternates by a practically unanimous votasisted of delegates from six countles nates by a practically unanimous vote. Fourteenth District.

In the Fourteenth district there were fifteen counties in the district. When the executive committee met at San Antonio to make up the temporary roll there were ten members of the com mittee present whose right to act was undisputed, of whom six were for Tatt and four for Roosevelt. There were four other Roosevelt men present whose right to vote was disputed and who were clearly not entitled to represent their county at that meeting. One of them held the proxy of the committeeman from Kendall county, who was dead, and the proxies from three other dead, and the proxies from three other counties were held, two by postmas-ters and one by an assistant postmas-ter, while under the election law of Texas no one who holds an office of profit or trust under the United States profit or trust under the United States shall act as a member of an executive committee either for the state or for any district or county. The temporary roll was made up by Taft members, having a clear majority without permitting these men to act under their proxies. There was a contest over the delegation from Bexar county, which contains the city of San Antonio. Full consideration was given to this contest, but the testimony was overwhelming that Taft carried the county by a vote of four or five to one. On the proper basis the total vote in the district convention was sixty-seven, of which the number instructed or voting for Taft was thirty-seven and one-half, the number voting or instructed for Roose velt twenty-eight and one-haif, not voting one. The Taft dele therefore sented at Chicago

CONCLUSION.

The purpose of this resume of the contests in which there was any shadow of substance has been to inform those who have not time or inclination to read the longer and more detailed account of them contained in the larger pamphlet. It is not essential to make Mr. Taft's title indisputable that all men agree on every one of the issues raised. They were decided by the tribunals which uniform party usage had made the proper tribunals to decide such contests. If those tribunals acted in good foith mistaken judgment would not treatly the tribunals acted. not invalidate their decisions. As a matter of fact, an examination of the facts show that the tribunals were right in every instance. There is not the slightest evidence that they were moved by other than a mere desire to reach a right conclusion. On the other reach a right conclusion. On the other hand, the action of the Roosevelt men in bringing 160 contests that they promptly abandoned strongly tended to show the lack of good faith in the prosecution of all of them. Those who support President Taft can well afford to stand on the record in this case and to asseverate without fear of success-ful contradiction that the delegates whose seats were contested were as fairly seated in this convention as to any in the history of the party.

When William Enggas, a plumber at Fifth and Grand, got married, he had a stylish horse and a neat plano box buggy. A few years later the horse JURRY. A few years later the horse had been replaced by a sturdler animal and the buggy had grown into a coad wagon, with an extra seat. Now, when the Enggas family goes driving, which is often, the road wagon is ound to have grown to a sort of omnitus, with seats for 12. A team of haufka has replaced the one horse of he road wagon days.

"I don't care if I have to use a hay wagon some day," remarked Enggas as he rested his horses for a moment. We have only ten children, but I am sure we would have twice as much lun if we had 20. I know that ten are five times as much fun as two. Yes, five times as much fun as two. Yes, hve times as much fun as two. Yes, they do enjoy their drive in the bosom of the family, as it were."

And Mrs. Enggas, who doesn't seem a bit worn and nervous as the story books and suffragettes would have us believe of a mother of family, smiled her assent. Maybe it is because she has no time to worry over suffrage or inything but to bring up her healthy, bright lot of bables.—Kansas City fournal.

THEY GET WHAT THEY WANT

THEY GET WHAT THEY WANT

Salvation Army Members Always Have Way of Getting Anything They Require.

There are few things that the Salvation Army does not require at some time in its existence, and because it mover hestiates to ask for what it wants it usually gets it, says the New York Times. The other night a small band of Army enthusiasts needed umbrellas. Rain pelted down with stinging force, yet they refused to break canks. A boy with umbrellas to rent perceived their drenched condition and tushed up shouting:

"Here are your umbrellas. Only 5 cents aplece till the meeting breaks p."

None of the Salvationists geemed disposed to gain protection at that prices, their resourceful leader made an appeal in their behalf. Addressing the few bystanders he said:

"If there are any persons in the audience who had contemplated contributing a little money to the cause, will you kindly give it now that we may rent these umbrellas which our young friend has offered us?"

PROMPT WORK

The roof of the home of Mr. W. B. Rogerson on Willard street, Newton, was damaged by a fire shortly before noon Saturday which started from sparks from the chimney. Only for the quick arrival and efficient work of the fire department a serious fire might have resulted. The blaze was extinguished with damage of about $500.

extinguished with damage of about $500.

A piece of burning paper coming through the chimney from a fire in the fireplace on the first floor started the blaze. The shingles were dry from the hot sun and easily burst into flames. Mrs. Rogerson was the only one in the house at the time and the fire was first noticed by neighbors who sounded the alarm.

When Mr. Rogerson arrived at his home later in the day he was told of the efficient work that had been done by the firemen. In appreciation of their work he visited the members of Engine 1 Company at Newton, Saturday evening, and presented them with a box of cigars.

POINTERS FOR THE MOTORIST

The action of moisture on the rubber in a tire is insignificant, but its effect on the carvas is serious enough to be worthy of attention.

Experiments made by the Michelin Tire Company show that if cotton is quickly dried after contact with moisture it suffers but little, even if this happens many times. A piece of cotton fabric which was exposed for a month in the open air to the action of the sun and rain did not lose more than 2 per cent of its initial strength, while a piece of calico. after being wet through and through and triving it is mersed in water for thirteen or fourteeen months it does not lose much of its strength, although the surface of the water meanwhile becomes coated with fungus growths. It, however, the fabric is left to lie in a moist atmosphere, on the floor of a damp cellar for instance, spots and stains will soon make their appearance. These stains denote the presence of destructive growth of minute bacilli which will rapidly reduce the fabric to mould. Similarly, wall paper hung in damp rooms will eventually fall from the walls and crumble to dust.

It follows that what really injures the canvas in pneumatic tires is continued dampness. It water is allowed to get into cuts which extend through the tread to the fabric, soome such condition of continued dampness will be brought about, for once the moisture enters a cut it has but little chance to evaporate.

It follows that what really injures the canvas in pneumatic tires is continued dampness. It water is allowed to get into cuts which extend through the tread to the fabric, some such condition of continued dampness will be brought about, for once the moisture enters a cut it has but little chance to evaporate.

Tires should therefore be stored possible amount of water and crying both tire and rim carefully as soon as the operation is complete.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.—The name of John Tiller is recognized the world over as a guarantee of terpsichorean perfection. Tiller was the originator of the Pony Bailet, and has produced more dancing novelties than any other living producer. It was a stroke of positive genius on Mr. Keith's part, when he entered into a contract for the famous English dancing master to bring to America the great John Tiller company, direct from a long and highly successful engagement at the Palace theatre in London. This company includes the famous Twelve Sunshine Girls, the Six Eton Boys, and four principal dancers, selected from 370 graduates of John Tiller's famous school now appearing in thirty-odd ballets in various parts of the world. They will present two distinct acts in different portions of the bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre next week, entitled "Over the Wall," and "The Sunshine Girlse." Both are contributed chiefly for fun making purposes and the introduction of expert and novel dances. Complete scenic and costume productions have been brought from London for each of these productions. Surrounding this great English novelty will be a number of all-star American vaudeville acts, including John and Mae Burke in their musical comedy specialty; the Great Ergotti Lilliputians, most wonderful of minlature acrobats; Swor and Mack, in realistic representations of the Southern darky; Hal Merritt, the cartoonist; Casey and Smith in a novel specialty; and Asaki, the remarkable Japanese who juggles on roller skates.

Tires should therefore be stored in cool places which are perfectly dry. After travelling over wet roads envelopes should always be dried. So likewise after being washed. It is important that tires be washed regularly in order that cuts may be revealed, cleaned and repaired. The best way to wash a tire is to sponge it lightly when full inflated, using the smallest possible amount of water and drying both tire and rim carefully as soon as the operation is complete.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE.—The name of John Tiller is recognized the world over as a guarantee of terpsichorean perfection. Tiller was the originator of the Pony Ballet, and has produced more dancing novelites than any other living producer. It was a stroke of positive genius on Mr. Keith's part, when he entered into a contract for the famous English dancing master to bring to America the great John Tiller company, direct from a long and highly successful engagement at the Palace theatre in the steamship Dorothy Bradford, down the harbor and along the Massachusetts Coast to Province-town and only interest town and return is not only Interest ing, healthful and comfortable but the genial captain and his trained officers. What His Wife Wears

"I am going to offer a prize," said the woman who had the floor, "to any one who will take my husband off and sequester him by threat, main force or guile long enough for me to buy a spring and summer wardrobe. It is absolutely impossible to do it so long as he remains at lerge.

absolutely impossible to do it so long as he remains at large.

"When I married John I had no ides he was so fussy. I think I spoiled him by unwisely complimenting his good taste and judgment in regard to clothes, and he got conceited about it He shouldn't have taken me seriously for a woman has a right to say anything nice to a man that comes into her head when she is trying to ensnare him into matrimony! If he played the game fair he would charge sear head when she is trying to en-snare him into matrimony! If he played the game fair he would charge all her compliments up to profit and loss and use common sense after he was married just as a woman does— but men are so foolish!

"John's conceit was a great shock to me, because everything I had done or worn or said had invariably been a little better than just all right with John.

"My awakening came when I purchased the linen dress. I found it in one of these exclusive little shops where they have clothes all ready to wear that are beyond your wildest dreams of style. The linen dress was the last cry. I can't exactly describe it except that it was a coarse, heavy, natural ecru linen with panels of heavy lace to match and an odd crimson suede belt and fascinating snatches of thin net let in here and there. Any woman can tell from this dees of thin net let in here and there. Any woman can tell from this description that it was exactly the stunningest, most unusual thing you can ever hope to see.

"I simply grabbed it and had it fitted to me. When it came home I donned it and casually walked out in front of John.

donned it and casually walked out in front of John.

"I hadn't exactly formulated what i expected him to say, but it was something to theseffect that he was overcome totally by my air of magnificence. Instead, he was strangely silent. I had not expected him to be so experceme.

overcome.
"'Don't fou like it?" I hinted. "Don't fou like it?" I hinted.

"John coughed. I looked at him in surprise. Then he took hold of a sleeve with a gingerly thumb and fore finger. 'What is it?' he asked, hesi tatingly. 'It looks—er—it looks like potato sacking. Of couse,' he added, hastily and politely, 'I know it isn't. But—er—isn't it queer?'

"Oh, he tried to be polite, he really did. But he suffered so while he was doing it that, having a tender heart, I couldn't stand it. He simply couldn't see that linen dress. To him it was durable.

"So long as that dress was in the house John was nervous, anguished and tormented, so I took it back. I told the store people that I'd pay them to take it back, because if I kept it I to take it back, because if I kept it I knew it meant a divorce in the family, but they were very nice and said I could change it. So I bought a lovely taffeta gown. It was a changeable silk with puffings and quillings and a qualnt lace fichu.

"My dear, you'll never believe me, but when I put that dress on John just sat and looked puzzled. 'Isn't it terribly old fashloned?' he asked, timidly. 'I remember my great aunt in a dress like that. Why don't you get something new and stylish?'

something new and stylish? "Wasn't that hopeless? I explained to him carefully that it was the latest style, but John vowed that it was an clent and that they had imposed on me and anyhow he disliked change able silk. So I sold it to my sister for $5 less than I paid for it. I was now $15 to the bad, as the second dress had cost $10 more than the original linen. I told John that when he could take a day off and accompany me on a take a day off and accompany me on a shopping tour I'd buy a dress, but un til then I would devote my attention to hats.

"I got a perfect love of a hat with a bunch of these white uncurled os a bunch of these white uncurred os trich feathers on that everybody knows cost like sixty—and John threw up his hands! He said I looked as though I had been caught out in the Boston Elevated Railway though I had been caught out in the rain and hadn't money enough to get the feathers recurled. He raved so about it that I sent the hat back.

"Then I sat down in front of John, and by painstaking labor extracted from him the description of the kind of clothes he would like to see me in. He said he liked tailory things with shirt waists that had collars and cuffs—they've been out five years you know—and sailor hats. John said that nothing on earth looked so trim and stylish as a perfectly plain sailor hat What would they do to me at a fash-ionable tea if I appeared in such gar ments?

"Oh, no, I didn't ask John that. Any how, I was in luck, because I know one woman whose husband want everything she buys to be red. He says red looks so cheerful. John is bad enough, though. I've made my mind up to stop worrying and buy clothes anyhow. "All I'm waiting for is some one to distract him while I'm buying clothes and then soothe him at the moment he first catches sight of me! He might just as well get broken in to having a stylish wife and get it over with!"---Chicago Daily News

Wendell Phillips Dodge relates an neident growing out of the first meet-ng of Robert Mantell with Sir Henry rving, back in 1882, when both were laying Romeo in London. There were eviewers who found Irving too old or the youthful Romeo, and one ad-ised that he should make way for the young fellow over at the Olymic." Irving prepared a special aft-rnoon performance in the Lyceum, to vhich all the players in London were nvited. After it was over, Mantell vent back of the stage, and Irving ask-d him how he liked the performance. It has been like an afternoon at

It has been like an afternoon at chool with congenial lessons," replied fantell. "How do you do it? How do you manage effects? How do you get such atmosphere, such a realization of the glory of the tragedy, with uch little effort? Is there no recipe?" "There is; indeed there is," answerd Irvins, "Simple, too; only three hings to remember. The first is sience, and plenty of it behind the cenes, so that the actor may be at lase, with nothing to distract when triving for his shadings. The second is light, regulated as far as possible so hat nature is counterfeited—and that,

"But," protested Mantel, "you said here were three things to remember; ou have mentioned but two. Is there thing?"

"Did I say a thing?"

"Did I say a third?" asked Irving. 'Um, perhaps I did, perhaps I did; put what could I have had in mind? Let me see. Ah, yes, silence, light, ind—um, shall I say—actors? Renember that, my boy, actors. Silence, light, and—actors, that is the third." ondon Strand.

It is therefore an easy matter for a liger with its great strength to break into a bouse and attack the inhabitants. Many instances of this have been recorded in Malaya. In one well been recorded in Malaya. In one well known case a whole family were kill-ed except one man, who climbed up nto the roof, and thus escaping the notice of the tiger, was a horrified ob-server of the cruel mauling and ultimate slaughter and devouring of his relatives .- Strand.

German Musicians Poorly Paid.
The Germans like music, but they to not want to pay for it. What they gladly pay for is food and drink, with tree music on the side. When a highclass musician playe at a variety show lass musician plays at a variety show or in a night cafe, he is looked down on; yet these are the only places where an orchestral player can earn a decent living. Some startling figures have been printed in Der Turmer which shows that it is practically impossible for a German orchestral musician to marry and bring up a family. For a family of four the minimum expenses, apart from food, are $250 a year. The income of an orchestral player is $330 income of an orchestral player is $330 a year; which leaves less than 25 cents a day for food. Americans pay mu-sicians ten times as much as the Ger-mans do; but we, to be sure, are mere barbarians in the eyes of the Germans, -Boston Transcript.

Sydney Smith on Music.
There is a story, which we have not been able to verify, of Sydney Smith's once saying that he never had seen "a more degrading spectacle than that of 500 people fiddling away about the children of Iarnal". As a sydingt this musik. dren of Israel." As against this unsubstantiated anecdote it is only right to quote the saying recorded in his "Life" (volume 1, page 442), "If I were to begin life again, I would devote much time to music. All musical people seem to be happy; it is the most en-seem to be happy; it is the most en-grossing pursuit, almost the only in-nocent and unpunished passion." This is a noble tribute, though the general-ization is perhaps too sweeping when one thinks of the loneliness of Beetho ven, the early and tragic ends of Mo-zart and Schubert, of Schumann and Hugo Wolf.—London Spectator.

Famous Kisses.

The first recorded kiss was the treacherous one given by Jacob to his father Isaac, when the former was masquerading as Esau. It is the first in a series of deceitful kisses recorded in history. There is a famous kiss in the "Beggar's Opera." It was given by Macheath to Jenny Diver, and the by Macheath to Jenny Diver, and the unpleasant effect which it produced on him may be judged from the sarcastic remark, "One may know by your kiss that your gin is excellent."

NORUMBEGA-MUSICAL COMEDY

The everlasting struggle for money through the medium of matrimony has perhaps been the making of more confidence sharps than anything else in the world, and this is the theme of the newest musical comedy by Mathew Ott entitled "The Dainty Quakeress" that will be seen for the coming week in the open air theatre at Norumbega Park. It is brightly written, cleverly conceived and an entirely wholesome play in every feature, shining with natural comedy, and interpolated with musical numbers in a manner to continually challenge and hold the interest, without breaking the thread of the story. Mr. Ott has composed some original music for this offering chief among which is "My Dainty Little Quaker Mald." This is bound to be the tuneful hit of the summer season. Other song numbers with which this play is replete are "Skeleton Rag." "Big Blond Baby," "Anywherê," "Magical Maids," "Billiken Man" and others.

The canoeing season is at its heighth now and patrons are afforded opportunities for indulging in this sport by the three boarhouses that are maintained by the management. In the Zoological Garden the animal exhibits have been greatly augmented this season and now comprises one of the most complete in the country. The Grape Arbor Cafe, Casino, Chalet of Wonders, Ritle Range, Swing Court, Merry-Go-Round and the other attractions of the park are enjoying a most successful season. In the cpen air theatre on Sunday night there will be the customary concert.

Pitched Battle With Gypsies. Some gypsies infesting the forests in the neighborhood of Fulda, Prussia, who have been hunted for weeks past, who have been nunted for weeks past, by the inhabitants and the military, have continued their nocturnal incursions into villages and lonely farms, where they lay their hands on anything they can take. A few days ago the population of Hunfeld, led by Haron Schenk, a local landowner, went in hot surrout of the thieves. saron schenk, a local landowner, went in hot pursuit of the thieves, and, tracing them to the border of a forest, surprised them whilst feasting on the spoil of the farm yards. A pitched battle ensued between the two parties. One gypsy was wounded by a shot from Baron Schenk's re-volver, but some of the band took him on their shoulders and ran into the

Forty-two soldiers were shot during the recent maneuvers of the Russian army. The announcement is stolldly made by the minister of war. He adds, "These men were in advance of the guns."

As guns do not ordinarily shoot backward, the minister's cryptic explanation may be considered superfluous. The incident is, perhaps, interesting chiefly because of the light it throws on Russia's official attitude toward the value of human life. If this in aptly with the reports of executions, imprisonments and exiles which, coming from all parts of the care's domains, keep the world informed of the progress of heartless oppression.

It is not surprising that the empire oppression.

It is not surprising that the empire is rocked with discontent, that observers believe the government faces another costly revolution. A nation cannot place so low a value on the lives of its subjects without ultimately reaping its reward in blood and terior.

Accidents in military maneuvers are not uncommon. They have occurred in the United States, and, doubtless, will continue to occur from time to time as long as military training is held a necessary part of every na-tion's list of obligations. It has reheld a necessary part of every nation's list of obligations. It has remained for Russia, however, to send soldiers "in advance of the guns" to be shot, and for a minister of the czar's government to announce the blunder to the world with as much unconcern, apparently, as he might announce the departure of a detachment for patrol duty on the Persian frontier.

Artist Calls to Exhibit Work at Mo-ment When Its Desirability Was Being Discussed.

Some years ago a publishing house was preparing to issue a new edition of the writings of Thoreau, writes of the writings of Thoreau, writes Charles S. Olcott in Art and Progress The head of the house and a member of his staff were in consultation about the method of illustration. It was agreed that the pictures must be true to nature; but how to get them was the problem. Artists who do book illustrating could not be expected to go into the woods and make pictures which would in any way assist the text to reveal nature as Thoreau saw it. Photographs would be admirable it. Photographs would be admirable but where was the professional photographer to be found who would undertake to go into Thoreau's coun undertake to go into Thoreau's country in summer and rain, in summer and winter, to catch all the phases of nature which Thoreau recorded in his "Journal"? While the two men pondered, a caller sat in the outer office with a large portfolio under his arm Five years before he had read Thoreau's "Journal," and had taken up his residence in Concord that he might visit the scenes there described. In all seasons and all kinds of weather he all seasons and all kinds of weather he had wandered through the woods and over the fields with his camera; pas sionately fond of nature, he was no less devoted to art. To him, photog raphy was a pastime—it was not his profession. For the pure love of na ture and of art, and with no thought of pecuniary gain, he had accomplished the very feat which the two business men had thought so difficult, and by a curious coincidence he appeared Church Music.

Church Music.

Music has long been notoriously s provoker of discord. Once in my news-hunting days I suffered the Ignominy of a scoop on a choir rumpus, and I thereupon formed the habit of lending an anxious ear to rumors of itrouble in choir lofts. The average ladder-like Te Deum, built up for the display of the soprano's vocal prowess, has always struck me as an un holy thing. I even believe that the horrors of highly embellished offertories have done much to tighten pursestrings and deaden generous impulses. The presence behind the pulpit of a languid quartette praising God on behalf of the bored sinners in the pews has always seemed to me the profanest of anomalies. Nor has long contemplation of vested choirs in Episcopal churches shaken my belief that choir music should be an affair of the congregation.—Meredith Nichols son, in the Atlantic.

WILL LAY GORNER STONE Hebrews of Newton Begin New Church Presented With Loving Cup by Claffin

On Sunday, August 4, the Hebrews of Newton will celebrate a great event in the laying of the corner stone of the first synagogue to be built in Newton. During the last fifteen years, which have seen the growth of this sect in Newton, a great struggle for religious existence has gone on continually. Small in numbers, and of limited means, the Jewish members of the community have always zealously observed their religious tenets, in spite of their limited facilities for conducting their worship. At first, the homes of the various members were utilized for Sabbath day services, each considering it his bounden duty to assist until such time as better means were afforded. Now, feeling stronger and their unity of purpose being fixed, the Hebrew residents of Newton have decided to erect a Synagogue, the first in Newton, where their religious life may be cemented and its future assured.

In carrying out this purpose, a great financial hardship is being undergone by each individual concerned, yet with high hopes and implicit trust in the community in which they reside, complete success in this undertaking is assured. reside, complete succ dertaking is assured.

The Synagogue, which is to be erected on a plot of land situated at 114 Adams street, Newton, is to be a two-story, half-cement tile and smooth red brick finish structure, The ground floor is to be used as a Sabbath school-room, vestry and meeting-rooms. The upper floor and galiery is to be the Synagogue proper and place of worship. Simplicity, the universal quality of Judaism, is to be the chief feature in its construction.

Leading Rabbis and Cantors of Boston and vicinity will officiate at the exercises at 3 o'clock P. M. Abraham Alpert, Esq., of East Boston, will act as Master of Ceremonies. Rabbi Friederman will also be prominent during the services. Mayor Hatfield has accepted an invitation to speak to this freedom from the many and various activities in which he is prominent. Other personages of local prominence are also to speak and assist during the exercises.

The arrangements for the exercises are in charge of the Building Committee, assisted by the Ladies' Auxillary of the Congregation consists of Mr. Max Silverman, Mr. Morris Gillord takes with him the Agudath Achim.

The Building Committee of the Agudath Achim Congregation consists of Mr. Max Silverman, Mr. Morris Gillord takes with him the best wishes of the many men who have been privileged to serve with or under him in the past 18 years.

TO MAJOR GEORGE F. GUILFORD, Former Commander of Clafin Guards

He outlined to the men his record with the company for the past eighteen years and expressed the hope the exceedingly good reputation of the company be kept up in the future.

In eighteen years' service, Major Guilford was absent from duty but four times, these all coming in his first four years, giving him the wonderful record of not having missed a drill or tour of duty in the last fourteen years.

His only reason for resigning his mominad is that he intends shortly to take up his residence in a distant state.

Major Guilford takes with him the best wishes of the many men who have been privileged to serve with or under him in the past 18 years.

The Building Committee of the Agudath Achim Congregation consists of Mr. Max Silverman, Mr. Morris Gilfax, Mr. Benj. Gilfax, Mr. H. Perry, and Mr. J. Swartz, treasurer.

MAJOR GEORGE F. GUILFORD,

TO MAJOR GEORGE F. GUILFORD (RETIRED)

For eighteen years a member of C Company, 5th Massachusetts Infantry, better known as the "Claffin Guards," six years of which be was Captain and to whose untiring efforts the magnificent new armory in West Newton is due.

Composed by Sergeant John D. Earle, "C" Company, 5th Mass. Inf. Oh Captain, our Captain, Your tour of duty's o'er; As Captain of the Claffin Guards We will see you never more.

Eighteen long years you served the state, As a member of the "Guard" And now the sudden leave you take Has hit this outfit hard.

We have grown to love you Captain; To know you as our friend And we feel our beart-strings tugging When we know this is the end.

We are going to miss you Captain, Miss you more and more each day, And the road will not look half so bright As we "hike" along our way.

You have been an inspiration; Our teacher and our friend, A guide that we may follow in safety to the end.

Still we know you're with us Captain, In thought, and heart and soul, And we know that just a thought of you

Jolly Boathouse Dance Held at Ellisville

The height of the social season at Ellisville was marked, last Saturday night, by a dance in the new boat house, which was attended by many guests from Washington, New York, Lynn, Dedham and Newton.

guests from Washington, New York, Lynn, Dedham and Newton.

The Marsh boat house—marsh being spelled either with or without a capital M, depending on whether one indicates the owner or the location,—is situated on the main turnpike and on the edge of Salt Pond. It is a beautiful Gothic structure set on piles with a front entrance which requires a knowledge of athletics to negotiate. Inside, the dancling floor was entirely free from pillars or supports of any kind and made a pleasing ball room.

As the lighting plant of the town was permanently out of commission, some charming filluminating effects were obtained by "bug" lanterns, dressed in red crepe paper.

The decorations of red, white, and blue, flags and Japanese lanterns were most artistic.

As the band had lost its way, mu-were most artistic.

As the band had lost its way, music was furnished on a Victrola and proved highly satisfactory, except when the record ended quite suddenly in the middle of the Virginia Reel.

The grand march was headed by Mildred, aged four, and Walter, aged six, and they were followed by children of all ages and sizes. Dance orders and bon bons were given to the children, and the snap of the bon bons and the donning of paper caps added much to the occasion.

The turkey trot, grizzly bear and bunny hug were barred from the program, altho one gray haired gentleman was overheard to mourn the absence of the last. Instead of these disreputable—tho fashlonable dances—there were the good old waltzes, a schottische, the jolly barn dance—a Virginia Reel, and other entirely "respectable" dances. The graceful butterfly dance was also given by several of these children—including the aforesaid gray haired person, and his lean, lank partner—who danced like two-year-olds.

It should be noted that none of the

It should be noted that none of the girls lacked partners, for the boat house held over a hundred lobster bouys, as well as a few boys who were "lobsters."

The party broke up at the scandalously late our of ten o'clock, with three cheers for Aunt Carrie and Uncle Dave, the hostess and host, and the orchestra.

A NIGHT ON LONG ISLAND SOUND

Travelling in hot weather, especially to and from New York, can be made a decided pleasure if one can only plan their trip via Long Island Sound and by one of the Colonial Line's luxuriously equipped steamships. By this means the pleasure seeker not only gains a daylight view of noted Narragansett Bay and New York's famous harbor, but of the picturesque shores of the Sound as well.

Torks lamous harbor, but of the picturesque shores of the Sound as well.

A refreshing night's sleep is always assured because the commodious staterooms one and all, open to the outside. For the comfort and content of their patrons this progressive company is ever alert and yet no special or extra charges for the same are preferred. And in the rest fully furnished cabins, saloons, smoking rooms and promenade decks, the electric lighted staterooms many of which contain brass beds, and have running water, the dining room with its menu of seasonable delicacles and the courtesies of the uniformed officials, one realizes a service equalled only by the leading hotels.

NEW PROFESSOR

Prof. Vaughan

Berkeley, Cal. to the chair of Christian Theology.

Professor Vaughan was born in Bangor, Wis., in 1870, and will be 42 years of age on Aug. 28. He is of Welsh parentage and his father was a well known minister in Wisconsin. The son was reared in the devout atmosphere of a Christian home. He graduated at Wayland Academy at the head of his class, winning the Colby scholarship in the University of Chicago. He earned his way by teaching and by taking prizes. He entered Brown University in 1891, graduating in 1895, being a prize debater and a Phi Beta Kappa man in his junior year. At graduation he took the first philosophical prize under Professor Andrew Seth, now of the University of Edinburgh, He took his theological course at the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, supplementing it by nearly two years of special theological study at Chicago, completing the studies for the Ph.D. degree. Among his accomplishments is the facile use of German.

He served successfully as pastor of

He facile use of German.

He served successfully as pastor of the First Baptist Church, Janesville, Wis., for seven years, when he removed to Berkeley, Cal., where for a year he served as dean of the Pacific Baptist Seminary and professor of theology during the absence of President Hill. Four years ago he became pastor of the First Church in Berkeley, which had been formed by the union of two weak interests, and built it up into a strong church. He has in his congregation many professors and students of the University of California. He is in the best sense a university preacher.

Three years ago Professor Vaughan infornia. He is in the best sense a university preacher.

Three years ago Professor Vaughan was called to the professorship of theology in Hamilton Theological Seminary (Colgate University) as the successor of the late Prof. William Newton Clarke, but declined the offer on account of the imperative demands of his church. During the last year and a half, in addition to his church work, he has been one of the regular lecturers at the Pacific Seminary (Congregational), and it is understood that the trustees of that seminary would gladly elect him as a full professor. There is every reason to believe that Professor Vaughan will sustain the best traditions of the chair so long occupied by Dr. Alvah Hovey.

MR. COBURN DEAD

Mr. Josiah Glimore Coburn of Newton died Monday at his residence, at 99 Washington street, in his 93d year. He was born at Pelham, N. H., July 16, 1820. He was taken to Lowell at the age of five and was educated in the public schools of that city. Gen. B. F. Butler was one of Mr. Coburn's schoolmates.

schoolmates.

As he was too young to enter college, he abandoned the idea and secured employment in a machine shop in Waterville, Me. Returning after a time to Lowell, he worked in the Boot and Merrimac mills. Later he started the Hill Manufacturing Company of Lewiston, Me., for the manufacture of cotton sheetings. He remained in Lewiston nearly 38 years. He was president of the first city council of Lewiston, president of the First National Bank for 30 years, and served on the school committee for served on the school committee for the same length of time. He was also a library trustee, and a charter mem-ber of the National American Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

After retiring from business, Mr. Coburn lived in Newton, coming here in 1890. He leaves one daughter, Miss Clara J. Coburn of Newton.

When it comes to reading, Dillmere, because of his tem reading, Dilimere, because of his tem perament, should select something soothing and mild. It was a malig nant fate that led him into the snare of the book agent who was selling 'The World's Greatest Crimes' at re-luced rates and in an attractive cloth

"I'm tired of nice books," said Dill "I'm tired of nice books," said Dili mere recklesly. "I've had a surfeit o recipes for tatting and prescriptions for making a china cabinet out of spacking box. My mind needs stimulating. Anyhow, it is a matter of education. I am ashamed to be ignorant of what has happened in the world." After dinner Dillmere retired into the fastness of an easy chair with his books and promptly was lost to his family.

family. "H'm!" coughed Mrs. Dillmere at last in desperation, "I looked at new coats for Johnny today."

Silence.
"H'm!" began she again. "Grace telephoned that her uncle was dead I wonder if he left anything? She's always expected that he would." Silence.

Mrs. Dillmere looked at her husband Mrs. Dillmere looked at her husband His eyes were popping out of his head and he breathed deeply. "James," she proceeded in a conversational voice "the bank failed today. Your father murdered your mother. I fell down stairs and broke my neck!"

"It's that book you were reading!"

"It's that book you were reading!" eclared Mrs. Dillmere. "Go to bed!" Dillmere persisted in reading the books. Occasionally when the hor rors grew too great for him to beat alone he related them to his wife after Johnny had gone to bed.

"I don't see how they earned a liv-ing in those days," Dilimere said one evening. "After every fellow got through his daily stunt of poisoning a few relatives, beheading a whole vil-lage, robbing cathedrals and burning up castles he naturally would not have much energy left for the milder pur-suits of life."

Mrs. Dilimere woke that night to find the lights turned on and Dillmere perched on a chair endeavoring to climb the wall. "James!" she shricked. "Hush!" said James impatiently

What Happened Then

Jones picked up his paper at about the third call from Mrs. Jones, rose rather reluctantly from his easy chair, and going into the dining room sat down at the table where dinner was already waiting. Mrs. Jones eyed him hopefully as she ladled out the soup, but he said nothing.

It had been rather a stressful day down at the office and he felt like nothing so much as simply being quiet, saying nothing to any one and having no one to say anything to him Consequently he silently propped the evening paper against the sugar bowl and continued reading the column of Wall street gossip about Harriman gobbling another railroad.

Mrs. Jones stood the strain of si-lence as long as she could and then burst forth desperately: "Well, what's new down town?"
"Nothing much," said Jones automatically. "Have a good day down at the office?"

"Oh, about as usual," answered

"Has Brown been giving you any more trouble?"
"Nope," he grunted shortly.
"How does your new stenographer get on?"

There was no hidden trap in this question, no secret jealousy concenied.
Jones's new stenographer was an elderly maiden who wore spectacles and goloshes and Mrs. Jones's mind was perfectly serene regarding her. "Aw rl'," responded Jones between mouthfuls.

mouthfuls.
"I believe you'll like her much better than you did that pert girl you had," said Mrs. Jones. "She seems sensible and respectful—quite different from that fluffy-halred thing who always looked at me so critically whenever I came down to the office. I fairly detected her the little report." fairly detested her, the little ninny!

Mr. Jones stirred uneasily, but made no reply, and after a pause Mrs. Jones sald: "How much does that clerk she married get?

"Now see here, Maria," said her husband, looking up impatiently, "Can't you see I'm reading? How can I tell whether it's Harriman or Bat-tling Nelson I'm reading about when you keep firing a question into me ev

Seeing that it was useless to try to make him talk, Mrs. Jones decided to do the next best thing—talk her-

'That Mrs. Bowman who's moved into the flat overhead was down again today." she began. "Do you know, Henry, I hate to say it, and of course it's no business of mine, and for all It know she may have taken it as medicine, but I was almost certain 1 caught the smell of whisky on her breath. I wonder if she drinks. Of course she acts like a lady and wears course she acts like a lady and wears good clothes and is polite, but you can't tell what you're going to encounter in New York. I don't believe in spreading scandal, but when Mrs Green dropped in here this afternoon I happened to mention my suspicions to her, and I asked if she didn't think it was awful for a woman to take to whisky and drink berself to death and then she said she met a woman and then she said she met a woman that would deceive you just the same way down at Bath Beach last summer She said this woman—"

"Oh, I don't care what she said or what this woman did!" exclaimed Jones angrily, shoving back his chair term the table and district the said. from the table and flinging his napking down on the table

Mrs. Jones's lips quivered. She buried her face in her handkerchief. "Now, don't start that!" said Jones "You know I didn't mean to hurt your feelings."

These were just the words needed to start Mrs. Jones off in full cry, liter ally. Her husband listened to her start Mrs. Joues on many ally. Her husband listened to her sobs for a moment and then as his wife begun to pour forth a torrent of reproach, he twisted uncomfortably for a few minutes, and then angry both at himself and at her, jumped up, and mut an his hat and stalked out of and put on his hat and stalked out of the flat, banging the door behind him Straightaway he went to the corner emportum, hoping to find some old emportum, hoping to find some old cronies there with whom he could laugh away his disgust with things in general. But he found none present and after a solitary drink, went out and slowly walked down the street, Accusing thoughts assailed him. He reproached himself as he thought of her cooped up in the flat all glay. But at the thought of the ceaseless flow of language, he gritted his teeth and went on down to a bowling alley, where he found some friends and immediately joined in the sport.

It was midnight when the play ceased. Then his conscience began to trouble him. Suppose burglars had broken into the house during his absence? Suppose there had been a fire, with him the natural protector, away? Suppose his wife, in her ex-citement and resentment, should throw herself—oh, no, that was foolish. And yet he had heard of women doing that. He worked himself into such a fever that he entered the darkened flat with a horrible feeling of foreboding. He entered his wife's bedroom and there

No, his wife had not been shot. She was sleeping peacefully. But she awoke promptly and proceeded with her discourse, giving such a tongue to him so he will remember to him so his life.

Distance at Which Recognition of Person May Be Considered Reliable.

POWER OF THE HUMAN EYE

How often we say "I recognized him" sometimes at distances that make us doubtful. Now the German government has made scientific investigations showing the distance at which this recognition may be considered reliable. According to their report, a man with good eyes will recognize a person seen once before at a distance not greatly exceeding $2. nize a person seen once before at distance not greatly exceeding a feet. An intimate acquaintance ma be recognized at from one hundred and sixty to three hundred and twenty feet; and a very dear friend or relative up to five hundred feet. The rifleman can discern the dif-ferent parts of his adversary's body, and every decided movement at about three hundred feet, and a movement of the legs or arms up to a little more than twice that distance. At six hun-dren yards a moving man is a mere creeping blur on the landscape, and at eight hundred yards any move-ments of the arms or legs are no longer visible.

Of course, there are averages such as the jurist must recognize in weighing the evidence of witnesses, and the military leader in noting the position of his antagonist and the outside limit of effective rifle and pistol fire. Then, there are exceptions to these rules. Hunters, seacoast dwellers, prafrie cattlemen and farmers whose sight, unweakened by civilized life and trained by constant exercise of "long sight," will often nearly double the averages given. So, too, the clearer air of the elevated prairies and table lands certainly doubles the power of the human eye.—Joe Chapple's News Letter. Of course, there are averages such

FORESTRY PROBLEM IN JAPAN

Brown Brothers Have Safe Themselves Destruction of Forests.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—One of the greatest bills of the season, composed almost entirely of new acts never before seen in Boston, and Including two big noveltles, is announced for B. F. Keith's Theatre next week. Edgar Allen Woolf's latest comedy drama, "The Clown," presented by a big company of clever players, will be seen for the first time in Boston, and Mile. Albertina Rasch, the celebrated Viennese ballet dancer, will bring her beautiful terpsichorean novelty, "Le Ballet Classique," supported by Mons. Pernikoff and a company of eight pretty dancing girls. "The Clown" tells a pretty little story of life in the dressing tent of a one-ring circus, and introduces all the odd characters encountered in the land of the "white tops' in the most interesting portion of the sketch is the prologue, spoken before the curtain by a pretty girl, who invites the audience to roam with her to the land behind the tent flaps and witness the real life behind the paint and masks of the funnakers. As the premier ballerina of the Imperial Opera in Vienna, and more recently of the New York Hippodrome, Albertina Rasch is known the world over. Her latest production is a splendid dancing speciacle in which no less than ten distinct and novel dance numbers are introduced. These two great features will be surrounded by a superbill, including Bilsey and Lerner, the Caruso and Melba of vaudeville; The Windsor Trio in a singing act with trimmining; Joe Lanigan, a new and very comical fellow; Swan and Bambard in a blackface specialty; Kennedy and Melrose in Bumping The Bumps; McCormack and Irving, in "Pilitology"; and the Three Dixons; buglers, singers, dancers, and banjoists.

Robert, Jr., had developed into a son who was quite a human being and entirely worthy of introduction into intelligent circles.

"Why not let me take the kid out to the club?" Salyer asked his wife on a recent Saturday afternoon. "I want to show him to the fellows. Oh, of course he'll be good—and I won't stay long. It'll give you a chance to get a little rest, too."

"It's a perfectly crary idea!" de-

Chief among the enthusiastic feminine admirers of Robert, Jr., was Miss Quigley. Sallyer grinned a bit when he observed her lift the baby upon her knee, for he felt that Miss Quigley was making a grand stand play and was not above getting solid even with the juvenile members of the Sallyer family. It was well known that she had her eye upon Sallyer's brother, Bob. Beyond the fact that she could play a disagnistingly group seame. could play a disgustingly good same of golf, Sallyer admitted that he couldn't object to Miss Quigley as a sister-in-law, though as a rule it did not do for a woman in a family to outshine the men in any line. She doubtless was waiting for Bob now. Sallyer turned to greet an acquain-tance. Five minutes later he was deep

For President WILLIAM H. TAFT

From such facts and figures as are available at the present time, it seems fairly certain that there will be a substantial increase this year over the tax rate of $17.60 for 1911. It is a little curious that notwithstanding the large increase in the state tax, the little curious that notwinstanting the large increase in the state tax, the total warrants for the state, county and metropolitan taxes are within a few hundred doliars of the same items for 1911. It is in the large increase in the city appropriations, and crease in the city appropriations, and the return to the usual overlay that makes the 1912 figures so much greater. The city budget is about "Child, what difference can it possibly make to your mother?" asked Miss Lord in surprise.

"Ma doesn't want to miss anything like that. She says it just does her heart good to see you and the swell go by so nice like together. Ma hasn't had much pleasure since the twins came, so she enjoys it when you two go by. She says. "That man can"; makes the 1912 figures so much greater. The city budget is about $50,000 more than last year, and the overlay of about $2500 last year is only a tenth of what is usually levied. There is also a reduction of about $9000 in the cash balance in the treasury. To offset these figures there is sure to be an increase in the receipts and the valuations will probably increase about a million and a hair, leaving about $35,000 or $40,000 to be raised by an increased tax leys. $18.00 would be a tair estimate of which is expected almost any time.

The political situation is gradually taking definite shape, and I believe is being carefully studied by the thinking citizen. As the campaign progresses the second sober thought is sure to come and with it the conviction that the Constitution of these United States should not be disregarded without ample reason. Greater than the tariff—the trusts—or the high cost of living—and as important as those questions surely are,—is the fundamental right of each one of us to life, liberty and happiness. President Taft has done well to make this issue the important feature of his letter of acceptance. If you prefer the specious arguments of the theorist or the blatant denunciations of the demagogue, you may ignore this issue—to your sorrow. If you hold to the opinion that every man, woman and child has equal rights with you—then, I beg of you, think of these things.

Forest Commissioner Bucknam makes a dignified and fitting reply to the query in these columns of last week. Publicity of this sort is the kind to make our citizens realize that our city officials are men who understand their business, and who attend to it.

Dear Sir:—In your last week's issue you had an article signed by "A Lover of Nature," and I request that you give my answer just as much prominence.
There are five eim trees on private property on Lewis Terrace. I consulted the owner of the land and was instructed to perform only such work as was necessary. I explained that the elm trees ought to be sprayed, but this work was excluded. The law does not cover the spraying of trees oces not cover the spraying of trees to kill the elm beetle, so this work could not be performed unless requested. The fact that the sprayers are kept within five hundred feet of these trees is not a sufficient reason. for me to spray trees free of charge. CHARLES I. BUCKNAM, Forest Commissioner.

CLARKE—FORD

The wedding of Miss Myrtle Estella Pord, daughter of Mrs. Annie M. Ford of Auburndale, to Harold Nicholson Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clarke of Somerville, formerly of this city, took place Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Congregational Church. The Rev. Dr. William C Gordon performed the ceremony. The bride, who was unattended, was becomingly gowned in white marquisette and carried white roses. A reception followed the ceremony at the residence of the bride's mother on Woodbine terrace. On their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will reside in Dorchester.

Mount Ida School

Send for year book

We prepare students for Vassar, Wellesley, Smith, Mt. Holyoke and send them on our certificate. But many girls after leaving grammar or high school do not wish to go to college. However, they desire advanced work, in a new environment and under competent instructors, and to select those studies which best meet their tastes and needs.

We offer just these opportunities. Students take English or Literature, but besides these studies the course for any girl is absolutely elective.

We do special work in Voice, Piano, Violin, and Pipe Organ, having the most ${\bf eminent\ masters}$ in Boston.

The opportunities of Boston in Music, Art, and historical associations are freely used.

A girl after leaving the grammar school can begin her studies at Mount Ida and continue her studies until she has an education equivalent to two years in any college, taking through her whole course an absolutely elective program.

Exceptional opportunities with a delightful home and social life.

"Portraits of triplets?" inquired the studio loafer. "Dobber told me he did dime museum posters, too, at one

'He ought to have stuck to that branch of art," remarked the artist. "No, you misunderstand me. I'll tell you how it was. There was one winter I was pretty well on my uppers. At that time I got acquainted with Glotto Parkinson, and I tell you he was a godsend. He had a studio in the Gros-venor and he didn't use it nights, besides having a samovar that he got in the Ghetto and plenty of alcohol. The Grosvenor doesn't favor light house keeping, but I was pretty careful how I threw my scraps out of the window "One day Parkinson gave an exhibthe day Parkinson gave an exhibit. He knew quite a few people in respectable circles and he thought there was a chance that some one of them might buy a picture of his if they got well under the influence of a proper art atmosphere and Russian stuck up a few little things of my own with his to furnish the art at-mosphere and he provided the tea and the samovar. It turned out all right. There was a coal baroness among those present and I got her worked up to the point of ordering from me a portrait of her ten-year-old son for $50. "She brought him around the very next day. Parkinson was a good fel-low and he let me have the use of his shop for the job. We had a bully good dinner on the strength of the condi-tions anyway. The kld was a sallow-faced, skinny-like monkey, not at all like mamma, but I calculated I could idealize him by a wide stretch of my well-known imaginative faculty. He had one sitting that day. The next day and for several other sittings his nurse brought him, and I want to say that I had the dickens' own time get ting that imp to keep still. It didn't do any good to talk to him. All I got by that was sass—oh, the worst sort. I just sweat blood for four days trying to get some sort of expression on that portrait that wasn't exactly diabolical and yet resembled the kid. At last I

"Two days later the picture done and the sigh of relief that I heaved made the windows rattle. I notified the baroness and she and the baron came to look at it. He seemed to have been brought under compul-sion and to be but mildly interested. I had learned that he was merely stepfather to the brat, so I didn't wonder so much at it. But the baroness threw fits of ecstasy over the picture and ordered two more at the same price, after trying in vain to beat me

"I won't tell you what I went through within the next month with the heir apparent, how day by day I grew to loathe the little wretch more and more. The dear angel had per and niore. The dear angel had per-formed a large variety of interesting tricks around the place to relieve the monotony of the sittings, and he wound up by coming early one after-noon and coloring Parkinson's cherished Florentine prints in oil in our absence. When I remonstrated he gave me a choice line of sass, where-upon I took my little man across my knee and laid merrily on. "Nearly two weeks later the coal baron caught me in.

Willie's Surfeit

Willie's mother was amazed, but Willie's Aunt Victoria was suspicious. His mother said she just knew the shild was ill and she beld the medical thermometer under his tongue thermometer under his tongue by main force, but his Aunt Victoria raised her eyebrows and narrowed her eyes while studying him. The trouble was that Willie had lot shricked with joy when his mother and said that she would take him to the circus. He had not even seemed aintly interested. It was an unheard of state of things!

"He hasn't any fever," announced hermometer. "Does your head ache, iarling?"

"Nope," Willie said cheerfully.
"I never heard of a boy who wasn't perfectly crazy to go to a circus!" persisted his mother. "Why, usually rou worry the life out of me from the lime the posters are put up! You ted that way when this circus first was announced, and I don't see—are you wan you don't want to a?"

you sure you don't want to go? "Td ruther go play with Arthur Lones," Willie said, wriggling. He edged out of the door.
"I just know he's going to be sick," repeated bis mother.

"I wouldn't worry," said his Aunt Victoria. "He looks perfectly healthy."
But secretly she was as much amazed as was Willie's mother. Reamazed as was willies mother. Regarding Willie from a calm, unemo-ional point of view, she recognized the fact that there might be other ex-planations than any which came into the mind of his worried parent.

There had been gorgeous posters for several weeks in the suburb showing forth the glories of the small circus that was coming, and Willie, with the other small boys, had followed the all poster about, hysterically whoop ing with glee. He had talked circus and dreamed circus for days and had early broke his neck practicing on the tight rope in the back yard, to the serious injury of the family clothes line. And now, the second day of the show, he had rejected his chance to go. It certainly was not normal conduct on Willie's part.

His Aunt Victoria cornered Willie that experience and offered him some that evening and offered him some chocolates. "Tell me why you don't want to go to the circus," she said, be guilingly.

"Huh!" said Willie. "I seen it." "I knew perfectly well you weren't going to be sick," she said, triumphantly, "Have another chocolate. Did you go to it yesterday?"
"Huh!" confided Willie, "I wuz in it."

Aunt Victoria clutched the chair

arm. "In it?" she repeated faintly.
Willie kicked one foot meditatively against the step. "Well," he amend ed, "not eggzactly in it, y'know.

Aunt Victoria felt her back hair dis tractedly and swallowed hard.
"Willie!" she cried impressively.

"Willie is not coming down with typhoid or the measles," his Aunt Victoria announced later to his parents. "In fact, I should say he is more than ordinarily sane and healthy."

Wille's father hates germs as much as does Willie's mother, and he was annoyed on hearing of his son's deeds. "You really ought to tell him not to do such things!" he said to his wife. It was then that Willie's mother turned on Willie's father. "My goodness!" she said. "Who on earth would ever think on getting up in the morn-ing of telling a perfectly well brought up child that he must not on any acon a red coat and ride an Between you and your son you'll drive me crazy

"Anyhow," sighed Willie contentedly, "I seen the circus!"

She dressed Baby Margaret like a doll and took her with her. To gether they were petted and praised.

Two weeks later Fini came down to fetch his wife.

"You are coming home with me Marcia," he said.

"Why?" she looked at him in surprise. "I thought you knew I wasn't coming any more?"

"That is what you said, and I

"That is what you said, and I thought I might let you have your way. But—I'm not going to let you take your life in your hands. I promised to love and protect you. My duty to my child places upon me the eme obligation to love and pro-tect er—I haven't any right as a husband and father to let you stay here."

That night Marcia talked it over with Connie. "Do you think I ought to go back?"
"If a man loved ma"

"If a man loved me," said Connie,
"as Phil loves you, I would go with him to the end of the world."
"That's what I thought," said Marcia, bitterly, "when I married Phil, but romance doesn't survive long when you are up against the hard things of life."

Philip Ames took with him an un-willing wife. The trip on the train was a silent one. Only little Mar-garet prattled of the return. "Are the pussles and the chickens expecting me?" she asked her futher.

"Yes, and the pine trees have lots of things to whisper in your ears. Don't you know when the sun is setting how they whisper, whisper, and sing lullaby songs?" "Yes," said little Margaret, "and that's the time when you always tell mother how much you love her."

Marcia, listening, felt her heart leap. That had been one of Phil's little ceremonies in their temple of love. At sunset he would take her in his arms and say, "Another day is hours, dear heart."

When had he stopped? She remembered with a shock that it was she who had rung the knell to ro mance. It was she who had been im patient of his caresses. It was she who had, one night, interrupted his sunset litany to say, "Another day of toil and trouble—another day—of toneliness."

After that he had not kissed her at sunset. After that he had withdrawn a little. After that he had worked harder and more doggedly. Suddenly the reason of his incessant laboring dawned upon her. Did he think she wanted an easy life more than she wanted romance, and so he had endeavored to give it to her?

denvored to give it to her?
Their horses were waiting for them at the station. They drove through the long aisle of the forest.
The pussies were at the door to meet Margaret. The man drove away with the horses, the maid who had greeted them turned and went into the house to serve the evening meal.

Philip looked at his wife. "You are home again, Marcia," he said, simply. "Will you try to believe it is for the best, and not blame me too much?"

Suddenly she relsed her face to hia "The sun is setting," she said, tremu-lously, "kiss me, Phil, and forgive me I didn't know,"

He took her in his arms and bent his face to hers, and she heard his whisper of fleroe rapture, "Another day is ours—another day of love, dear heart."

Interesting Summer Notes and Announcements

To add to the interest in the fishing trip, Aug. 22nd, at Swampscott, Mr. Gleason of Newtonville has offered to give $2.50 worth of supplies from his jewelry shop.

Already twenty-five men have decided to go. This nearly completes the party as it has been decided that the party should be limited to thirty. The train leaves the Newton station at 6.06 A. M. and the boat leaves Swampscott for the fishing grounds at 7.45. Captain Haley furnishes lines, bait and a fine fish chowder.

Anyone interested should see Mr. Birmingham, Mr. Newcomb or call at the Y. M. C. A.

East Boston Boys at Y. M. C. A.

Thirty-five boys came from East Boston and arrived at the Y. M. C. A. at 9,30 A. M. Wednesday. The boys came here with the funds that were provided by the citizens of Newton. A game of baseball was played, followed by a swim in the pool. Then followed a lunch, consisting of sandwiches, lemonade, cakes and bananas. In the afternoon the boys were given the privilege of the building and another swim.

Mrs. Whitney had charge of the lunch. She was assisted by Mrs. Whitney and Miss Helen Cunningham.

Baseball Game Saturday

Saturday at 3.30 P. M., the Knights of Columbus team will play the Newton Y. M. C. A. team at the Y. M. C. A. grounds.

Wilmot Whitney, the last year pitcher, who did such good work for the locals last Saturday, will pitch for the Y. M. C. A. team.

THE LADDIE"

THE LADDIE"

The trouble with most of our farces with music seems to be that one and all fail to meet even the commonplace things of life on equal terms. They seldom strike a human note even when the author intended to inject a little situation into his play. In "The Lass and the Laddie" its author. Mathew Ott, has given us a character story that is as funny as it is absorbing in interest. This delightful musical comedy will be seen for the coming week in the open air theatre at Norumbega Park. It seems that a young American dramatist has written a Scotch play and almost on the eve of its acceptance circumstances arise that prevent its production and he is driven with his play and his ambition from pillar to post in an effort to have it produced. But all without success until a suggestion is made that he must acquire some notoriety or fame before commanding consideration. With the help of a friend he plans a fake suicide in a vert spectacular manner. His plans are carried out but they get him into unlooked for complications that bring about the laughs that run riot throughout the piece. The cast comprises an excellent company of comedians chief among whom are Joe Daniels and Jack Dempsey. The chorus of pretty and sprightly young ladies are gorgeously costumed and form a pleasing adjunct to the rest of the company.

Lady Book Agent Found It the Same With Both Wife and

The Tired Lady Book Agent was naving a very poor day. She had rung innumerable door bells and talked till she was hoarse to all kinds of people. She had in every case been invited in, which was a good beginning. She had dold her story, gone into details of half-calf, morocco, and plain cloth hindings, but no sale had been made. Young women and old had given the same excuse for not subscribing then and there.

"Yes, I like it very, very much, but must consult my husband." "Surely," the Book Agent thought, "Burely," the BOOK Agent Books, or 'no one can say that women disregard their husband's wishes even in these Votes-for-Women days."
Finally, late in the afternoon the last house was reached.

"Ha!" said the Book Agent, gloe-fully. "Here's where I get a sale. She's a widow, and she won't have to consuit her husband." So she rang the bell hopefully and

The cruelty of fate becomes apparent to people as they grow older At first one may perhaps escape contact with it, but if one lives long enough one realizes that happiness is very ephemmeral." "But is not optimism a useful and sane philosophy?" the visitor asked. "There's too much sham contains and one and one and one sham contains members and one and one and one sham contains members and one and one and one of the sham contains members and one of the same contains and one of the same conta sham optimism, humbugging, and even cruel optimism." DEPENDED ON THE HUSBANDS FIFTY YEARS IN PRISONS SHANTYMEN OF EAST CANADA

An extraordinary spectacle was pro sented in the dock at the London sessions, the other day—a gray haired, pearded man, 98 years of age, who had spent three parts of his life—half a entury-in prison for thefts which today would call forth a comparatively rifling sentence. The judge the first passed sentence of three years' penal servitude for the theft and five years' preventive detention, saying it was the minimum the law allowed in such a case, but later he decided that such a case, but later he decided that the offense was one in which he could having regard to the past treatment of the prisoner, pass a sentence of 12 months hard labor, thus avoiding the sentence of preventive detention.
When he heard the altered sentence, the old man, bringing his hand to a military salute, exclaimed, in jot gratitude: "I will endeavor to make it my very last, sir."

of contemptuous amusement always flits over the face of the hotel clerk. "That smile is hard for a free-born American to stand."

Discount for Rent.

When the bachelor maid wrote a check for her rent she looked thoughtful. "What is the matter?" asked her mother. "I am wondering why tenants do not get a discount for cash in ten days. Merchants do. The usual rule in business is a discount of 5 per cent for cash in ten days. New York tenants, on the cortrary, are asked to pay their rent thirty days in advance of the time it really is due and such a thing as a discount never has been heard of, so far as I know. Merchants do not pay for goods until they re-ceive them, but we tenants are expected to pay for something we have not had and may never have, if, for in stance, the premises should burn. I am not much of a political economist. I wonder if some of the presidential candidates could explain the situation to me-I mean an explanation that would really explain.

Actor Holds Two Records.

Herr Bernhard Baumeister has just celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his joining the Imperial Court theater of Vienna. This is believed to be a record for any player, and as Baum-elster is now 84 years old, and stil' plays regularly on the same stage, he holds the double distinction of being the oldest actor in Europe, and the one who has played longest at one and the same theater. He appeared in the evening as Falstaff in "Henry IV." one of his most famous roles, and received a tremendous ovation, in return for which he delivered a short speech of thanks. The Emperor of Austria, who is two years Baumeister's junior, sent him a special message of congratulation and promised a pension for life to his wife, a compara tively young woman, whom the aged actor married only two years ago.

ANDREE KILLED BY ESKIMOS

Norwegian Explorer Brings Story Indicating the Fate of Christian Laden, a Norwegian ex-plorer, has returned to this country with what he believes to be the first evidence of the fate of Andree's balevidence of the late of Andrees Davison. Laden was commissioned by the Royal Museum of Berlin, the University of Berlin and the University of Christiania, to explore the unknown region of northwestern Canada and to bhain data about the Indian tribes in the region, some of which have never before been visited by white men.

At a point 200 miles north by west of the point at which it has been generally believed that Andree perished. Laden encountered a tribe of Eskimos, who related a story to the effect that several years ago a large bubble fell from the heavens, containing two creatures supposed to be "devils," and that these creatures were able to hur lorth fire and thunder from strange mplements that they carried. The nembers of the tribe attacked the two reatures and succeeded in killing one At a point 200 miles north by west reatures and succeeded in killing one of them with arrows, whereupon the other made motions to them signifying that he and his companion were shoot. ng at birds for food and had come

When the Eskimos realized that they had attacked human beings, who and no unfriendly motive, they fled n dismay, leaving the surviving white nan alone. What became of him they lo not know.—Scientific American.

Wireless Works Better at Night.
That the long electric waves utilzed in aerial telegraphy over great zed in aerial telegraphy over great fistances travel better during the cours of darkness than of sunlight and that the natural electric waves occasioned by atmospheric electric kischarges, known as "strays" of "X's" to wireless operators, are despatched more satisfactorily during the hours of the night than in the laytime is now a matter of common knowledge.

Tests made in London during the solar eclipse on April 17 last indicate that the durkness of this eclipse had the normal effect of facilitating the propagation of these waves over great listances, but that there are portions of time during the period of deepest larkness at the receiving station when propagation is notably impeded Whether or not this last phenomenon is to be taken as a mere accident has not yet been clearly ascertained.—

Revealed Family Secret.

The other day a teacher in a Boston school, who had just had a present of a very handsome hand-painted fan, took it down to the class room for the edification of the scholars. Very few of them had seen anything other than of them had seen anything other than the palm leaf, or cheap Japanese fan and did not associate this gorgeous af fair even with the five cent paper things of somewhat similar shape. Selecting perhaps the dullest of the pupils, the teacher held up the fan, and asked what the lovely thing

Strange Case of Dr. X

This is a story told by a physiciar living in a large western city of a problem that suddenly confronted him—and of how he interpreted the ethics of his profession and acted on

"I was roused one night," he said, "I was roused one night," he said,
"by a telephone cail. An unfamiliar voice asked me if I could attend a man who had been injured. I answered that I could if the case was urgent, but before I could ask who was calling, the speaker answered: 'All

"'Doctor,' he said, 'before we start I want to make a request. This case as I told you, is urgent. But before we start, I must have your assurance that you will treat this visit as a confidential mission. I can't say any more, except to add that you're run aing no risk of any kind in helping me. And you can name your own fee.'

"There was nothing about the man's appearance that appeared suspicious He was quiet and self-possessed—there wasn't a trace of nervousness about him, and he was well dressed The request was somewhat unusual, but, after all, nearly everything that we learn professionally is held in the statetes confidence without any defi we learn professionally is held in the strictest confidence without any defi nite understandings to that effect, so I thought there was no reason for re-fusing to make the agreement.

"Well I didn't like the looks of this over the windows.

until we get inside the house."
"Well, I didn't like the looks of this, but I was in and I didn't like to back out. Of course I wasn't at all afraid for my own safety. By the time the carriage stopped I didn't have the least idea what part of town we were in—we had made so many turns. I put on the blindfold, as my visitor requested and we went up some steps and into a "Upstairs, I found my patient. H! opstairs, I found my patient. He had been shot twice. Revolver bullets they were. The wounds weren't dan gerous, but they were painful because they had not been treated earlier.

"I dressed them, told the woman

"I dressed them, tout the works who was there what sort of care the patient ought to have, and then told them that I'd have to see the man at least two or three times more before I could answer for his safe recovery.

"The man with the dark glasses quietly assented to this, but insisted that he should bring me at night, as he had that time. I agreed.

he had that time. I agreed.

'The next morning the papers told of a robbery, in which a householder had been wounded, after shooting one of the burgiars, who succeeded in escaping. All the facts indicated that my patient of the night before was the burgiar who had been shot. I reit sure I could locate the house. The householder recovered quickly.

householder recovered quickly.

"The question stared at me: Did the ethics of the medical profession allow me to go to the police and tell them what I knew, or did my promise bind me to secrecy? I thought it over all day and finally decided that I had no right to say anything about the matter. I made three more trips in the same manner and finally decided that the man would get along without any the man would get along without any more calls. All this time I watched the papers, but no trace was found of the burglars. When I made my last visit I told the man who had first called on me that my fee would be $25. He took from a large roll two $100 bills and handed them to me without a word. He drove me home and that was the last I ever saw of either of them.

"That was a good many years ago, but I've often wondered whether I did fight in not violating

"I don't think you did." said a mem ber of the group. "The medical pro-fession has no right to shield a crimi-nal. Women and children should be given the greatest protection we can give them-the same as on a at sea-but no word given a criminal is binding."

"But suppose it had turned out that the man was not the burglar in ques tion. I believe he was, but it night have been otherwise—?"
"That's true," said a third. "It was all right to keep your promise so long as you had no actual knowledge that the man was a criminal. Where you made your mistake was in making such a ridiculous agreement in the first place."

first place."

"And let a man, dangerously injured, suffer?" asked the first speaker.

"Remember, when I first agreed to secrecy the case had no particularly suspicious appearance. ITALICS USED FOR EMPHASIS

They Reveal the Writer's Sense of the Relative Importance in Things He Has Written.

Doctors of style in the writing of English declare that the use of italics Engish deciaire that the use of halles for emphasis is a positive fault, show-ing weakness of construction and in ability to express ideas strongly by a right arrangement of words. Never-theless, italics are used deliberately theless, Italics are used deliberately by some forceful writers to gain added effect and to fasten the eye and the mind of the reader upon important points, somewhat as a speaker will strengthen his oration by vocal emphasis and gesture. Whatever may be said for or against the use of italics, they certainly reveal the writer's sense of relative importance in the things he has written. He has selected certain words and hence, as we note their significance we begin to know more of the man behind the words. His choice of emphasis tells us what manner of man he is. His italics are an index of his mental or moral character. moral character.

We are all writing history day by day. On every page some things are written small, others stand out boldly in italics. Take up the book at night and read the story of the day. It will be an interesting record—perhaps a startling one. Doubtless we shall feel very much like correcting the proof when we find where the italics are Interesting Spire.

Since the sudden fall of the great Campanile at Venice a few years ago scientific experiments have been made to afford assurance of the stability of other famous architectural piles in Italy. Among these is the unique cathedral of Milan, built all of marble, with scores of slender pinnacles, and a lofty main spire terminating in a great lofty main spire terminating in a great marble statue of the Virgin. The experiments on this spire, while demonstrating its complete stability, show interesting effects of the wind and solar rays. As with other lofty towers, the point of the spire describes daily an elliptical curve, the size and precise form of which vary with atmospheric conditions. But the greatest displacement seldom amounts to more than a single minute of arc, in more than a single minute of arc, in this case less than a third of an inch. A tempest of uncommon violence in 1905 displaced the top of the spire eight millimeters.—Harper's Weekly.

Makes Protest for Miners.

The Transvaal Cornish association any a Johannesburg telegram, has passed a resolution declaring that, in view of the revenue which the state derives, directly and indirectly, from the mining industry, the state should contribute not less than 50 per cent.
of the total required for the compensation of sufferers from miners'

For President WILLIAM H. TAFT

President Taft shows the stuff of which he is made, when in the fact of a specious popular demand for revision of the wool tariff, in the middle of a campaign for re-election, he courageously vetoes the wool bill which has recently been passed by Congress. He has also emphasized his belief in the civil service of the hill which changes the life tenure, to one for seven years. By and by the citizens of these United States will find that they have a real man in the White House, one who does not change his opinions with every passing breeze and one who commands ing breeze and one who commands respect, notwithstanding differences of opinion.

The taxpayers of Newton are to be congratulated that my pessimistic prophecy of an increase in the tax rate was quashed by the assessors when they announced the 1912 rate as $17.40, a decrease of twenty cents. All the factors on which an increase was predicted, but two, remained the same, the assessors finding over four millions increase in valuations. instead of the normal million and a half, and a larger increase in the estimated receipts than usual. These two reasons explain the drop in the rate.

I wonder if the Roosevelt enthusi I wonder if the Roosevelt enthusiasts really want Johnny Fitz in the United States Senate instead of Congressman Weeks, Congressman McCall or Ex-Governor Draper. Placing candidates in every representative and senatorial district in the state will surely bring about this result. This is a fact the so-called "progressive" party should carefully consider.

POLICE NOTES

In the Police Court Naday morning William H. Ryan, anas William H. Keut, who was arrested in Hyannis last Saturday by Inspector O'-Halloran on the charge of larceny of a gold watch and ring and a sealskin bag from one of the exclusive clubs of this city a little over a month ago, was sentenced to two months in the House of Correction by Judge Bacon. Ryan worked for the club for a little less than two months and on the evening of the larceny was noted by other employees of the house as drunk. When he did not show up for work several days after a warrant was issued for his arrest, and the police recovered the goods stolen in jawn shops in Boston. Ryan paid the costs in taking the goods from the pawn shops.

Dogs' Black List.

A dogs' black list has been established by the National Cyclists' Unton to deal with ill-natured animals who interfere with cyclists. In bringing an action against the owner of a log it is not sufficient to prove that the dog caused the accident and that the defendant is the owner. To suczeed it must be proved that he was ware of its dangerous tendency. It seed it must be proved that ne was aware of its dangerous tendency. It may come out in evidence that the same dcg had caused accidents before, but it must be proved also that the owner knew this. The National Cyllists' Union asks cyclists who know of one of these dangerous dogs to send on the name and address of the owner and description of the dog. As soon as the information comes to hand a registered letter is sent to the dog owner drawing his attention to his log's dingerous propensities and noti-lying him that if an accident occurs a copy of the letter will be produced in evidence should the matter come into court.—London Globe.

Making a Goat

Fere all business men connected with tome eastern or western house. No. 32 was not a popular train, and they took it simply because each had business engagements or schedules that nust be followed wide, arid waste, leaving behind slouds of alkali dust.

The train had just spun through a wide, arid waste, leaving behind slouds of alkali dust.

The five men were grouped together, pretty well talked out on general subjects, and each ready for a little sacitement, when one of them pointed out of the window. "See those foot-lills over there? Just a few months ago, they caught 'Red Bert' there. He held up a train near here, and shot the engineer and an express agent."

Then it was that a little insignificant chap who had joined them fifty miles back, by his card a representative of a small beef concern, ruffled the nerves of the five travel weary men in a way he had not before.

The little drummer, Blake, nodded als bald head, and started in to relate some of his exploits and went on: "You bet I wouldn't lay down for no man that walks here in the west or anywhere. Most of you fellows are from the east, I take it, and go through these parts, and I've mixed with hell these parts, and I've mixed with hell.

to the coast; but I do business round these parts; and I've mixed with bad men in bad places, and I've never laid down, but I've made some of them do it." He lit a cigar with a self-satisfied

The others said little, though one or wo winked slyly, but all were of the same mind evidently; for when the conversation had ended, thoroughly killed by Blake, they drifted together in another part of the coach, after Blake had gone back into one of the rear coaches.

"Say, but that little pup gave me one gigantic pain. If he saw a bad man, he'd crawl down his shirt to get but of sight. He don't know a grom a hole in the ground," one them exclaimed heatedly.

The others concurred.
"This is a deadly tiresome Can't we get up a little excitement, and make him the goat?" another asked, eager for some excitement.

They sat in thought for a few moments, then a young member of the group spoke up. "I've got it! We ought to make a regular jack of him to pay him for that hot air, and take some of the swelling out of him. What do you say to this? One of you go fo you say to this? One of you go back and fix up kinda rough, you know, some old duds, get a gun. and while the train's going slow up the ridge, come in and hold the bunch he said; "and don't come butting in on

Blake passed at the end of the car.
That was clever, and I went you one time you meet a little insignificant cuss like me who wants to entertain you with a few yarns—take off your nats!" He vanished.

When out of the confusion came orfer, and a doctor had brought Brow-aell around and dressed the slight wound on his shoulder, the silent oup of men took notes and thought

"It's a regular planned hold-up; they had a man in each car. When they reached a certain spot, that was to be the signal, that was why Blake was rubbering out of the window, and threw the bluff that he was scart; but when he got there—he—well, you know," the young fellow said, mourn-

"This is something like it," said Young Borgus with satisfaction.
"It sure is!" agreed Miss Clancy. She shrugged her shoulders as she glanced back at the lace curtains of the boarding house window. Inside the parior the gas glared hotly, lighting up the hair wreath above the manicle and glittering on the gaudy vases beneath.

'Now, that it's got warm enough to "Now, that it's got warm enough to it outdoors," pursued young Borgus, stretching his long legs over three steps below him, "we can shake the parlor in there! were empty.
"Come on," he said. "Let's go get some ice cream. Just as sure as we go back there somebody else'll come out!"

In a sympathetic sort of disgust they sought the brilliantly lighted candy store on the corner and found s

"Strawb'ree for me," said Miss Clancy. "I just wonder, Jimmy, that you haven't got tired, before this and quit me. It's flerce, going to see a girl that hasn't a parlor of her own to entertain company in! We've sure been chased around enough by them other boarders!"

"Well, were's away from 'em right now," said young Borgus. "Let's make the most of it. I—"

"Why, the idea!" broke in a high-pitched voice at the next table. "If it isn't Miss Clancy! Oh—how do you do, Mr. Borgus!" There was an arch inflection to the greeting that was intended to carry the idea that the speaker appreciated the sentimental situation.

"How-do, Miss Binks?" said Miss Clancy stonly.

Clancy stonily.
Miss Binks was forty, dressed like twenty and fondly thought she looked like sixteen. She made eyes at young Borgus, who turned purple. Then she arose with her plate of ice cream and fluttered into the vacant chair at their table. "It's so lonesome by myself," she purred apologetically. "I was so thirsty I just had to come out after something cold, but I shrink from going out in the evening unescorted. It's more sociable this way, don't you

"Oh, my, yes!" agreed Miss Clancy with sarcasm that was tota'ly lost "Sorry we're just through. We've got an engagement to meet some friends!"

"Let me slip back and stick some cold poison in her ice cream," growlet young Borgus throatly after they had escaped. "She's the limit! Another second and she'd have asked to go walking a state of the second and she'd have asked to go walking a state of the second and she'd have asked to go walking a state of the second and she'd have asked to go walking a state of the second and she walking a state of the second and she walking a state of the second and second an walking w. a us! The Climbers

Flora, Dear: Your letter rather olqued me. Your accusations were uncalled for. I am not secretive; neither have I evaded your questions purposely. Judeon Barnet, or "Jack," as we now call him, is a wonderfully clever, interesting man, and I admire him exceedingly. You may safely gratify your curiosity with the information that I am not in love with that but one more week remains to snip the scenery.

Weren't you surprised to receive my card postmarked Switzerland? This has been rightly designated the "play ground of Europe." I have had such a perfect time and dislike to thin that but one more week remains to surprise the scenery.

I have actually climbed five glammountains of the Alps. Aren't you envious? Our party arrived at Lucerne during the late afternoon, and when I viewed those majestic mountains, hedged about with mystery—the glaciers filling the neighboring valleys—the snowpeaks, whose white outline against the sky was camed like in its clearness, I longed to reach their summits. Jack and a few others voiced the same desire, and our consuming ambition became to add notches to our alpenstocks. add notches to our alpenstocks.

Early next morning we ascender Rigi to see the sun rise. What at inspiring sight! Far below flower the River Reuss, and there was Lu cerne surrounded with its walls and nine toll houses, resembling a "fair; city" held in the fastness of the moun tains by some powerful enchanter. over the flowery fields of the valley This seemed strange when we were surrounded by snow fields. The following week we went to Lake Brieng and crossed to Inter laken. Here the incomparable Jung frau loomed invitingly in the distance. The mountain would not come to us so, like Mohammed, we went to the mountain. At Lauterbrunnen village we took the cable cars, which lifted us 2,200 feet to the famous little al pine village of Murren.

Here we had a wonderful view of Jungfrau. This maiden of the Alps appeals strangely to one. She is sur passed in beauty by Monte Rosa and in grandeur by the Matterborn. To me she is the loveliest of mountains We reached the summit at sunset

I never imagined such wonderful col-oring possible! The evening clouds and shadows gathered, and finally night enshrouded the peaks with its dark, silent pail. We descended half-way down the mountain and spent the night at a picturesque Swiss inn, where we sat around the huge fire where we sat around the huge fire place relating strange experiences. The following day we journeyed to Byron's Lake Geneva, with its romantic castle of Chillon, spending two weeks there. Then we came to Zermatt. I am a real mountaineer now. You should see me attired in a rough suit, with spiked shoes, green hat adorned with a sprig of edelweiss and my "ruck-sack" strapped to my back. I somewhat resemble Pligrim on his I somewhat resemble Pligrim on his rough and weary way. First we as cended Monte Rosa, and two days later braved the Matterborn. I did not enjoy climbing this mountain, and you will hardly blame me when you you will hardly blame me when yor have heard all.

Six of us started out, tied to the same guide. After climbing for hours and hours I became frightfully fatigued and while scaling a rugged crag I slipped and turned my ankle again. To proceed was impossible. The guide told us of several huts built to shelter stormbound climbers instructing us to remain there until he returned, and not to attempt a deacent. Jack assisted me—in fact

It was a wonderful experience, but I haven't the slightest desire to re

Jack just brought the dreadful news that four of the original party were lost in the storm. What a horrible fate!

Tonight we stood upon the balcony and watched the calm sunset lights burn upon the Breithorn's crest. One last, faint, rosy glimmer touched the Matterhorn. Then all grew gray and colorless. Day was done. A shudden passed over us both.
Our unusual experience has draws us very near, dear Flora, and I appreciate his "bigness" of spirit; but 1 de not love him—yet. Ever fondly.

The next thing I remember was one beautiful night when I heard steps on the gravel, and looking up saw my loved one coming, and with her another human, taller and not nearly so pretty; he did not look like a flower at all, unless it were to remind one of the tulips. I never did care much for them. My love was all in white, and looked like the tall lilies that grow

Her voice as she replied was cold and hard—I scarcely recognized it as the same that had talked so lovingly to us. "Maurice, I am not to be trifled with. I want to know the truth, and you must let me be the judge as to its significance in the weaving of our lives hereafter."

I lay a long while on the rough gravel, feeling lonely and homesick for my swaying bush, when I was aroused by hearing Ruth say, in broken, tear ful tones: 'Leave me, Maurice, for the sake of my love for you, leave me.' I heard him plead with her—then he turned suddenly and left her standing quite near me. She stood motionless as though listening to catch the last sound of his footsteps-the click of the gate sounded in the distance, and then all was silent. At last she gave one sob and fell all in a heap on the gravel near me.

"I thought 'twould a' been real nice to married a genius," ventured Miss Emily.

"A genius is a prenuptial ornament exclusive," announced the bride, emphatically. "He don't have no wearin' qualities. There's Mr. Biggers, as was alway writin' literchoor, an' namin' himself 'Sidney Biggers the third.' I asked him if the other two was similar to him, an' when he says they was I told him I thought there'd been a plenty of that kind. No, Emily, I ain't been about bein' married to lib erchoor.

"An' Mr. Grigsby is—different?"
"He's just as plain as this gold ring

Round the house the bride led the way to the kitchen—sniffing as if she expected the odor of cooking food to greet her noatrils. Miss Emily meekly followed in the walks of Miner va's white muslin wedding dress as she whisked its skirts from side to side with an air of assurance that she could now show a man who knew how to be a husband instead of a genius. But Minerva's assurance was short lived. As they rounded the corner of the house they caught sight of the lank figure of the bridegroom stretched lank ngure of the bridegroom stretched full length under a tree near the kitch en door. Under his head was one of Minerva's freshly laundered sofa cushions. With his left hand he held between his teeth a jewsharp, while his lean right hand laxily twanged the ured strokes as the soothing strains of "Rest for the Weary" floated out upon the air. A young theological student supplied the pulpit in a Vermont village one summer, and the involuntary smiles of his rural congregation one Sunday worked a change in his habit of emphasizing pronouns for which his friends and professors had longed. He was reading the thirteenth chapter of 1 Kings; and, on coming to the twenty-seventh verse, he said distinctly: "And he spake to his sons, saying, Saddle me the ass. And they saddled him."

UPPER FALLS WINS

Score of 7 to 6

The ability of the Upper Falls nine to hit the hall at opportune times annexed another victory to their aiready long list last Saturday, trouncing the St. Paul's of Cambridge 7 to 6 on the Upper Falls Playground. John Conlon started the game for the home leam, but after five runs had been piled up by the visitors, he was recue. Estelle, although reported to have lost his arm early this spring, had the Cambridge hoys completely at his mercy during the seven remaining innings, issuing but one free pass and forcing twelve men to fan the air. Crowley in left field contributed two good catches and the work of Murphy and Fitzmaurice excelled for the visitors.

MAKING COMRADES OF CHILDREN

"The peril of the homelessness lies in the fact that parents do not take the pains to understand their children. They are out of sympathy with them. They do not encourage anything like camaraderie. They reject or repress any attempts at exchanging confideaces. The father forgets that he was once a boy. Having lost the enthusiasm of boyhood, he looks with contempt upon the temptations and follies of youth. How is he treating his boy? He condemns his associates in unmeasured terms; he ridicules his cherished plans. When, in boyish admiration, the lad exploits his presidential candidate, the father realize what he has done? He bas practically rendered his boy homeless. That boy will leave home to find sympathetic companionship. In boyth, he will form the nucleus of a street-corner gang, and be happy in it."—Suburban Life Magazine for September.

Entered Clark House.

with members of the Boston force were successful in bringing to justice Robert A. Cowan, a West Roxbury young man, who entered the home of Mr. Charles A. Clark. 33 Washington street, Newton, nearly two weeks ago and jewelry amounting to $480 stolen. Cowan pleaded guilty of the charge preferred against him and was held in $1000 bail for his appearance before the Grand Jury.

The burglary was one of the hold-held in $1000 bail for his appearance before the Grand Jury.

The burglary was one of the boldest that has come before the local department for several years, as the man entered the house through the second story, while eight members of the family were on the lower floor. His task proved easy, as he ransacked the four rooms on the second floor, and had made good his escape some little time before the occupants of the house were aware that the house had been burglarized.

Inspectors Fletcher and O'Halloran were placed on the case, and several days before the thief was apprehended, had recovered nearly half of the jewelry stolen. Through information furnished by the pawn broker, where Cowan had visited with the jewelry, Inspector O'Holloran and Sergt. O'Neil of the Boston Police located their man on Hanover street, and after being searched and a revolver taken away, the prisoner was taken to headquarters where he was booked.

When put through the third degree
by the officers, Cowan first maintained that his name was Robert C. Conrade, and that he had a few weeks before he had participated in several boxing bouts. Inspector O'Halloran later

Man Comes Forward With Convincing Argument That One Clerk Was a Manlac.

There are some who argue that many people who write books are crazy. W. W. Richardson of Wash ington now comes forward with the argument that at least one man who sells books is a manlac. Richardson went to a book store last Christmas and said to the young clerk:

"I want a copy of Poor Richard's Almanac one in brown leather."

"Almanace?" echoed the clerk. "Yes, sir. Down in the paper-good department with Christmas cards and calendars."

"Perhaps you can give me a copy of The Master of the Inn,' by Robert Herrick," Richardson made another suggestion.

"Never heard of that," confessed the clerk, "but I can give you something just as good. We've got "The Master of Ballantrae."

Richardson sighed hopelessly and voiced his desire to get a child's book.

"We can fix you out there without any trouble," said the smiling clerk.

—The Dutch Supper at Mrs. Katherin Ryan's on Auburndale avenue on Monday evening was largely attended. The proceeds were given for the improvement fund at St. Bernard's Church.

A clergyman of a New England town was called from his study to marry a young couple from an humble walk in life, but beaming with happiness. At the conclusion of the ceremony there was a pause. The bride looked inquiringly at the groom, and he gazed back. At last she stepped forward, hesitating, and said, "We-we are-very nuch obliged to you sir, and we hope that at some time we shall be able to retaliate!" Her husband looked at her with undisquised pride in her ability to cope with a word of such length and elegance, and the minister bowed the couple out with that remarkable wish ringing in his ears.

For President WILLIAM H. TAFT

The police department deserves congratulations on its prompt work in capturing the burglars who recently broke into a Hunnewell hill residence. A few more examples of this sort will make this class of gentry think twice before they operate in Newton.

POLICE NOTES

Mrs. Maria Vitto of 195 Adams street, whose home was visited last Saturday at midnight by Alfred M. Russell, agent of the Board of Health, after being warned several times in regard to violating the regulation of the Health Department, which prohibits more than one person for every 400 cubic feet of air space sleeping in the same room, was found guilty Wednesday morning by Judge Bacon, and a fine of $20 was imposed. This house was visited twice last year, and each time conditions were found the same as on Saturday night. Another complaint was received by the Board of Health a week ago and Mr. Russell decided to make another midnight visit on the house. When told that a fine of $20 was imposed, the defendant told the court that she was without funds, but as this did not work, she managed to pull a good-sized roll of bills from her pocket.

Here is an essay composed by a boy of nine on Cromwell: "Cromwell was a wicked man, and killed lots of men. He had a nose of copper hew, under which dwelt a truly religious soul."—Christian Life.

A story is told concerning a famous man of letters who visited Washinston and appeared at a dinner party. He sat next to a young girl, who rattled away at the famous man. He wanted to talk to his hostess, but hadn't a chance. The girl said to him: "I'm awfully stuck on Shakespeare. Don't you think he's terribly interesting?" Everybody listened to hear the great man's brilliant reply; for, as a Shakespearean scholar, he has few peers. "Yes," he said solemnly, "I do think he is interesting. I think he is more than that. I think Shakespeare is just simply too dear for anything!"—Philadelphia Call.

PAY ACTORS BY THE YARD

Huminating Statistics Come to Light in Suit Brought by Moving Pic-ture Concern.

Bernhardt's acting is worth a cent a yard, Coquelin's costs 5 cents and Eva Lavalliere can and does draw 10 cents for every three feet of her posing. These illuminating statistics came to light in the course of a sult which one of the picture companies is bringing because several miles of the product furnished them was said to be below because several miles of the product furnished them was said to be below standard.

That acting ought to be paid for by the yard is no new idea, aithough it is not generally stated with such bruttal frankness. An evening's "entertainment" has to last a certain conventional number of minutes, or it is not worth the money. It has to be cut into a conventional number of peleces and adorned with a certain thin the star has to be on the stage a good portion of the time; in other words, he or she must contribute a certain number of yards of acting at every performance or the public will go where they can get more stuff for their money.

Bernhardt gets less from the moving picture people than Lavalliered about one-tenth as much. That, also, is a good, concrete filustration of the market tendencies which we deplore in theory and encourage in practice throughout our own theatrical season. Public demand, after all, determines the prices if not the values of the atrical commodities just as it does in other industries. If we can be induced to pay most for the tinsel and baste, for the shoddy and the highly-colored cotton, it is hardly fair to put all the blame on the managers. To use one of the classical expressions of our modern Risito, theatrical managers are not "in it for their bealth."

WALKING TIME IS CUT OFF

Abolition of System Causes Consider able Trouble in the Adirondack Region.

There is trouble in the southern secition of Espex county because certain road superintendents, new in office, bave cut off "walking time." That is something probably unknown in the city, but in the Adirondacks, a section of great distances, it is of importance to men working on the new roads being built by the state. Able bodied men live at such distances from each other and from their work that when a gang finally is got together some of the men are certain to have walked miles from home. If married, as they isually are in the mountains, they have the same walk back at night This became known as walking time; that is, the man was on the job the moment he took up his dinner pail and started to walk to his work, even hough it took him an hour or an hour hough it took him an hour or an nour and a half to get there. He also juit that much earlier than others in the evening, but was "at work" and paid for it when walking home. The new superintendents have decided the state cannot afford to pay men for walking, and have cut off that time. The result is a great discontent and rouble in getting sufficient men for work on the roads.—Boston Tran-

HEADGEAR OF FRENCH WOMEN

All Kinds of Fantastic Ornament Used to Cover Heads for Eve

A well known Paris painter gave a lecture a few days ago on the man-ner in which women covered their heads with all kinds of fantastic orna ments in the evening. He said that it was a pity when hair had so much expression in wave and color to con-ceal so much beauty beneath so-called fashionable accessories.

All the time this gentleman was expressing his views on this subject the audience was much amused at the presence of a beautiful actress famous for her exaggerated head dresses

On this occasion she wore a cap of gold and white brocade with a high mass of white algrettes extending around the front from ear to ear. From the center of her forehead stood a black aigrette almost tow feet high held by an enormous cabochon in cut jet. Whether this lady will henceforth follow the conferencier's suggestion remains to be seen. But it is said that we shall soon be wearing a rose and little else in the hair.-Gentle

Washington Woman Seeks Office. Mashington to aspire to a state office Mrs. Josephine Corless Preston of this city, a native of Minnesota, is mak ing a strong campaign for the Repub lican nomination for superintendent of public instruction

Women have voted in Washington less than a year, but friends of Mrs Preston, believing she has the qualifica tions of an excellent state have persuaded her to enter the race and she has been causing the old line politicians endless worry. Mrs. Preston is not a suffragette

She is quiet, unassuming and capable For four years she has been superin tendent of the schools of Walla Walla county and for two years before that was assistant in that office. She has been a teacher in the schools here for some years, an active worker in educational circles, and a recognized authority in the work.—Walla Walla Correspondence St. Paul Dispatch.

BEACH CARNIVAL

All along the Revere Beach Boulevard buildings are being elaborately decorated in preparation for the Mardi Gras carnival which takes place on the state reservation Sept. 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7. According to the reports of those who know this year's Carnival will eclipse anything previously on the cards in New England by way of a public celebration.

Every afternoon of the carnival at troupe of darling trapleze artists will carvort in the air closee to the water's edge, while a little farther down the beach two tight rope walkers made up as an clephant will balance a hundred feet above the heads of the crowds. Four performances free to all will be given each day.

Chester I. Campbell, J. H. MacAlman and J. S. Hathaway, will act as judges for the decorated automobile parade Saturday afternoon, Sept. 7 Prizes amounting to $90 will be given in this event for which entries will close Sept. 5.

The feature of the carnival will be the five magnificent pagents which take place on the boulevard at 8 each evening. Ten floats will be in line headed by the royal float bearing the work of months by a corps of skilled scentification artists. Thousands of paper flowers are part of the trimmings, while the lighting effect is a distinct novel-ty. Special costumes have been made for the 142 characters on the floats. Five bands and drum corps will be in line with, details of mounted and foot police. Herbert N. Ridgway is chief marshal of the parades.

Fatal Accident From Contact With Live Boys to Play for Championship on Labor Wire

Ellisworth Fleet, aged 30, employed by the Edison Company as a trimmer, fell to his death from the top of a pole at Washington and Hovey streets Wednesday forencon.

He had been at work on the pole, 25 feet above the street, only a few minutes, when he came in contact with a live wire. He struck the street a few feet from the curbing. Other employes removed him to the home of John Flood, and Dr. Thomas M. Gallagher was summoned. In an unconscious condition he was placed in the police ambulance. The ambulance made the run to Newton Hospital in record time of ten minutes, but Fleet was dead when it reached there. He is survived by parents living in Marblehead.

DEATH OF MRS. WHITNEY

Mrs. Etta Martin Whitney, died Saturday at her home in Newton Highlands, after a short illness. The funeral took place Tuesday at her late residence, 173 Lincoln street. Impressive services were conducted by Rev. Dr. George S. Butters, pastor of the Centenary Methodist Church at Auburndale. Appropriate selections were rendered by the Mendelssohn Male Quartet, and the floral tributes were numerous and very beautiful. The remains were taken to Forest Hills Cemetery for cremation. Mrs. Whitney is survived by one daughter.

BOSTON THEATRE. — Beginning Monday, Labor Day Matinee, September 2d, "The Greyhound," the latest play by Paul Armstrong and Wilson Mizner and the newest production by the Wagenhals & Kemper Co. "The Greyhound" was the dramatic sensation in New York last season, where the play ran for six months at the Astor Theatre to absolute capacity audiences. It is described as an incidental play of odd episodes and unique types of character. While the main story is a very thrilling and dramatic one, and many of its incidents are of most dramatic quality, the piece is so punctuated with comedy and laughable characterizations that it is at times quite as funny and anusing as a farce. A wide variety of interesting characterization is shown, the prosperous banker and his family of the Middle-West, the multi-millionaire rich of New York, poor shop girls, boarding house keepers, college men, Chinamen, detertives, and the uniformed and gold-laced navigators of our great trans-Atlantic liners. A splendid cast of distinguished players interprets these various roles, including Henry Kolker, Elita Proctor Oits, Douglas J. Wood, Thos. Coifin Cooke, Juy Wilson, Alice Martin, Harry Cowley, Wm. Mack, Helen Orr Daly, William Lyons, Gladys Fairbanks, Grace Valentine and many others. The scenic environment of "The Greyhound" is as novel as the play itself. One scene only is upon the land. This shows a San Francisco lodging house in the district known as the Barbarry Coast. Five other scenes all occur upon the occan—a glant "occan greyhound" being the setting. These scenes in their order depict the hurricane deck of a modern steumship, the promenade deck, the cardroom, the grand salon and the hurricane deck at night with the wireless fashing and all the accessories that go to make up life upon an occan steum-rafter night has fallen.

HERE FOR EDUCATION

A very interesting Filipino family, Mrs. Fanstino Lichanco of Manilia, with her three sons and three daughters have leased the Dr. Canfield house on Watham street for a number of vears. Mr. Lichanco is one of the leading merchants in Manilia, doing a very large business in the exportation of cattle, which necessitates his remaining in his own country. He desires that his children should have an American education and fortunately for them, they are to have the benefit of our public schools. Henry W. Savage was the broker.

POLICE NOTES

Nicholas DeSimoni of West street, Nonantum, was before Judge Bacon Monday on the charge of disturbance and a fine of $15 was imposed. DeSimoni was arrested after he had been put out of his brother's house on Chapel street, and had thrown a stone through one of the windows, nearly striking a child asleep in the room. He also assaulted a young Italian boy in front of the house, before he was arrested. He was unable to raise the amount of fine, and his case was continued until Sept. 12, to give him time to get the money.

Frank Jackson. charged with assault and battery on Joseph Fernelli, a shoemaker of Bowers street, Newtonville, which resulted in Fernelli receiving a bad cut under the left eye, was sent to the Concord Reformatory yesterday by Judge Bacon. PLEASANTRIES

Once, when Gen. Butler was in Congress, he rose in his place, and gently insimunted that the member who was occupying the floor was transgressing the limit of debate. "Why, general," said the member, in reproachful tones, "you divided your time with me." "I know I did," rejoined the grim old warrior. "But I did not divide eternity with you."—New England Home Magazine.
